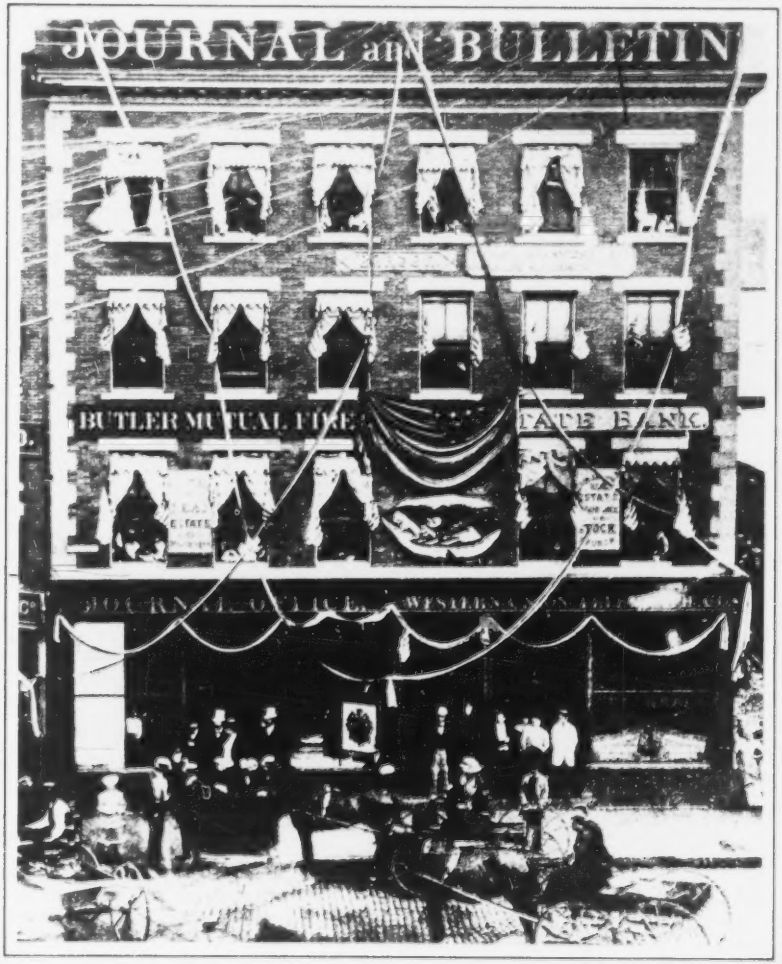
RHODE ISLAND ALMANAC



100th Annual Edition

Your whole family can make use of the Journal-Bulletin Almanac. This complete, one-volume reference contains a large and varied amount of helpful information.

You'll find the most recent facts obtainable about Rhode Island and its 39 cities and towns . . . their history, government, politics, educational systems, welfare activities, finances and populations as well as landmarks, parks and airports.

Also included is such information as presidential election statistics, sports results, calendars, astronomical and tide charts, weather information, facts about local organizations . . . and, of particular interest to businessmen, economic statistics and marketing data.

Joseph O. Mehr, Editor
Susan Fedorzyn-Edgar, Assistant Editor

COVER: The first edition of the Journal-Bulletin Almanac was compiled in 1886, when the Journal was located in the Barton Block at 2 Weybosset Street.

HISTORICAL DATA

Cranston settlement began four years after Roger William settled in Providence. A group known as the Pawtuxet purchasers, became a separate entity, although remaining a political part of Providence. On June 14, 1754, it beame a town. Named after Samuel Cranston, governor of Rhode Island from March 1698 until his death in 1727.

The greatest development in the town was in portions adjacent to Providence and these were annexed to Providence: June 10, 1868, South Providence and Elmwood sections; March 28, 1873, additional parts of Elmwood and Washington Park incorporated into the Roger Williams Park area. In May, 1910, a proposition to annex Edgewood caused such a bitter controversy that the town adopted a plan for a city government to end further annexations by Providence. The town was incorporated as a city on March 10, 1910. The first election under the charter was held April 19, 1910 and the new city government was organized May 2, 1910 with Edward M. Sullivan (D) as its first mayor.

A home rule charter was adopted in 1962.

HISTORICAL DATA

East Providence was incorporated as a town on March 1, 1862. The name was conferred upon it by Gov. William Sprague by request of the citizens' caucus. The first town meeting was held March 1, 1862, in the Old Town Hall on Pawtucket Avenue. By 1888 the town had outgrown the old building and a new Town Hall was erected on Taunton Avenue in the Watchemoket section.

The first white settler of what is now East Providence was Roger Williams. He settled at what is now the mouth of the Ten Mile River. The Indians called the place Seekonk, derived from two Algonquin words—"seaki" (meaning black) and "honk" (meaning goose).

The boundary dispute between Massachusetts and Rhode Island, which dates from Roger Williams' eviction, was carried on intermittently until it finally was settled by the United States Supreme Court at its December, 1861 term. The westerly part of Seekonk was annexed to Rhode Island and incorporated as a town March 1, 1862, in settlement of the boundary dispute. Its area is 13.85 square miles.

HISTORICAL DATA

Newport, "America's First Resort," was founded in 1639, and was incorporated as a city in 1784, and rechartered in 1853. Under the charter of 1853, on June 7, Robert B. Cranston was chosen mayor. Immediately after organization of the new city government on June 9, he resigned. Alderman Jo Hunter was elected presiding officer of the board and ex-officio mayor pro tem Oct. 6, 1853, at a special election. George H. Calvert was elected mayor.

Newport has long been one of the chief naval ports on the East Coast. It is the home of the Naval Base, Naval War College, Officer Candidate School, Naval Supply Center and Naval Underwater Systems Center.

The city has an area of 7.3 square miles. Famous as a resort, Newport began accommodating summer "colonists" from southern states even before the Revolution. Its Gilded Age came in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. Many of its mansion-sized "cottages" are still in full use, but others have been converted to tourist showplaces or taken over by schools and colleges.

President John F. Kennedy was married in Newport to the former Jacqueline Lee Bouvier, and also vacationed there during his presidency.

A new city charter drawn up under provisions of the Home Rule Amendment to the State Constitution, and providing for a city manager and nonpartisan, unicameral council, was approved by the voters at the general election of Nov. 4, 1952. Enactment on Nov 1, 1953 of the new charter was a long-awaited victory for those Newporters who had been working for a council-manager form of government since 1922.

Their efforts, in the form of bills in the state legislature for new charters, were defeated many times during those 30 years despite approval of the proposed charters by Newport voters at referendum elections prior to enactment of the Home Rule Amendment.

HISTORICAL DATA

Pawtucket, whose name is of Indian origin, was known by that name from the earliest days of the colony. The present city was formed by combining original settlements on both sides of the Blackstone River. The portion on the easterly side which separated from Seekonk in 1828 and incorporated as a town in Massachusetts, was transferred to Rhode Island in the state boundary settlement on March 1, 1862. The portion on the westerly side was a part of North Providence until it was annexed to Pawtucket on May 1, 1874. Pawtucket was incorporated as a city March 27, 1885 and the city government organized on Jan. 4, 1886.

The first settler was Joseph Jenks Jr., who established a forge at the falls of the Blackstone River in 1671. Samuel Slater in 1790, built the Arkwright models for cotton machinery that established the industry in the United States. His factory, erected in 1793, was the first successful cotton mill in America operated by water power. The Old Slater Mill has been restored and now is a museum.

Pawtucket has an area of 8.8 square miles. There are 208 miles of streets, of which 182 miles are improved. Park and playground areas total 423 acres.

A new city charter, providing for a strong mayor and unicameral council form of government, was approved by the voters at the general election of Nov. 4, 1952. It became fully effective Feb. 1, 1954.

CITY STATISTICS

Providence was founded in 1636 and was incorporated as a city in 1832. The first mayor was Samuel W. Bridgham, who served from June, 1832 to Dec. 31, 1840. The present area of the city is 18.91 square miles. The population of the city was 156,804 according to the 1980 federal census figures, a decline of 12.4% from the 179,116 in the 1970 census.

Providence has seven hospitals; 21 public and semi-private libraries; 14 museums and art galleries.

TAX COLLECTIONS

City Collector—Ronald L. Tarro. Tax payable on or before July 24. Quarterly installments due July, October, January and April. If the first or any subsequent installment is not paid on time, then the whole tax or any balance thereof automatically becomes due and payable with interest at 12 percent from July 24.

All property on which the tax remains unpaid for 1984 and any prior year will be advertised May 1, 1986 and sold May 22, 1986. Estates are sold for the amount of the tax and expenses incident to the sale. The person who accepts the smallest portion of the estate sold will be considered the highest bidder. Any person whose real estate has been sold at tax sale may redeem the same any time within one year by repaying the purchaser the amount paid thereof with 10 percent interest for the first six months and one percent additional for each of the following six months the property is held.

Net valuation fixed and taxes assessed as of Dec. 31, 1984. Tax rate $72.49 per $1,000 valuation. Net tax locally raised $108,847,318.29. Total assessed valuation — $1,530,679,191. Per capita assessment — $9,323. Assessment ratio — 42.7%. Bonded indebtness (as of June 30, 1984)— $78,675,000.

LICENSES AND PERMITS

The Department of Inspection and Standards at 112 Union Street issues permits for the erection or alteration of buildings according to plans which must be filed with application; moving buildings over accepted streets; certificates of compliance with fire escape law including inspection of fire escapes; elevators; sidewalk vaults; signs over sidewalks and on walls; billboards; storage of dangerous chemicals and of petroleum products, the latter with the consent of the City Council; gasoline service stations; occupancy of sidewalks; location of tar kettles; miscellaneous permits such as temporary fruit stands and Christmas tree stands; licensed occupancies for fire protection and structural stability.

Permits for the sale and installation of all fuel burning equipment, permits to operate commercial heating equipment and licenses for boiler operators or refrigeration engineers are issued at the office at 112 Union St.

The Board of Licenses issues licenses to all liquor, Sunday sales, taverns, victualling, lodging, parking, shows, dance, peddlers, junk, secondhand stores, pawnbrokers, shooting galleries, pool, bowling, dog, hackney, wagons, lunch carts, newsboys, athletic exhibitions. The board office is in the City Hall.

Application for opening a street, making sewer connections, and building driveways must be made to the Director of Public Works.

Licenses for hunting and fishing, trade name certificates, and bankruptcy notices, are issued by the City Clerk.

Petitions to the City Council for street lights, layouts of highway, remission of taxes, claims for damages, abandonments, and zoning changes can be obtained from the City Clerk, City Hall.

PROVIDENCE CITY HALL

The Providence City Hall, built of Westerly and New Hampshire granite, four stories and basement, with mansard roof and thoroughly fireproof, is located upon the plot of land bounded by Fulton, Eddy, Washington and Dorrance Streets, the lot measuring 171 by 188 feet and having an area slightly over 32,000 square feet.

The cornerstone was laid June 24, 1875 and the building was dedicated Nov. 14, 1878. The cost of the structure was $1,040,000.

In 1914, extensive alterations to it were begun. Originally the structure was but three stories. Another story was added, extensive changes made in the roof, and an entire refitting of all the offices was carried out. The cost of the improvements was about $150,000.

In addition to the chamber of the City Council, the following municipal offices and departments are located in City Hall: Probate Court; Recorder of Deeds; Department of Public Property; City Clerk; Mayor; City Treasurer; City Controller; Board of Canvassers; City Collector; City Assessor; Finance Director; Tax Assessment Board of Review; Registrar of Vital Statistics; Bureau of Licenses.

The building is opened at 8:30 a.m. and closed at 4:30 p.m. on all weekdays, except Saturdays when it is closed. From the first Monday in July until Labor Day it closes at 4 p.m. daily. Members of the city government and all persons having special business may enter at other times on application at the Washington Street door. Persons attending open sessions of committees, public hearings, etc., held after the hours of closing the building will be admitted at the Washington Street door.

The Probate Court sits every Tuesday and Thursday at 9 a.m., except in July and August, when it is in session only on the second and fourth Tuesday and Wednesday.

Major city offices not located in the City Hall are as follows: Police and Fire Department, 209 Fountain St.; Public Works Department, 20 Ernest St.; Park Superintendent, Roger Williams Park; Traffic Engineering Department, 52 Ernest St.; Public Welfare Department, 111 Fountain St.; Recreation Department, Roger Williams Park; School Department, 480 Charles St.; Water Supply Board, 552 Academy Ave.; Dog Officer, 12 Service St.; Municipal Garage, 20 Ernest St.; Department of Inspection and Standards, Housing, Zoning and Building Boards, all at 60 Eddy St.; Dept. Planning and Development, 40 Washington; City Solicitor's Office, 60 Eddy St.

WATER SUPPLY

Providence obtains its water supply from the Scituate Reservoir and five tributary reservoirs, all located on the north branch of the Pawtuxet River. The watershed covers 92.8 square miles and represents about 9 per cent of the total land area of the state. The area actually owned by Providence is 23.93 square miles; this is nearly 5 square miles greater than the area of the city itself.

The six reservoirs have a combined total capacity of 41.3 billion gallons and a total water surface area of 4,557 acres. Over 10,500 acres of intensively managed forestland are marginal to the reservoir system and provide protection to a water resource known for its high quality. For the year ended June 30, 1985, average daily consumption was 66.3 million gallons.

The reservoirs, their individual capacities and water surfaces area: Scituate, 37 billion gallons, 3,390 acres; Moswansicut, 1.8 billion gallons, 282 acres; Regulating, 4.3 million gallons, 242 acres; Ponaganset, 7.4 million gallons, 229 acres; Barden, 8.5 million gallons, 240 acres; and Westconnaug, 4.5 million gallons, 174 acres.

The main reservoir is formed by a dam across the Pawtuxet River at the former village of Kent. Water storage in the reservoir began on Nov. 10, 1925. The dam is about 3,200 feet long, principally of earth, with a minimum height of 100 feet above the valley and 180 feet above bedrock. An aqueduct from the dam connects with a nearby filter plant which was placed in operation on Sept. 30, 1926. Here the water is treated and discharged into two aqueducts; one is the original 90-inch, with a capacity of 100,000,000 gallons daily. It is 7.30 miles long, including 3.34 miles of tunnel, 1.77 miles of masonry \conduit in open cut and 2.19 miles of steel pipe lines, and connects with the distribution system in the vicinity of Phoenix Avenue, Cranston. The second is a 9.5 mile, 78-inch and 102-inch supplemental tunnel and aqueduct which terminates at Budlong Road, Cranston. Flow from the source of supply to the distribution system is entirely by gravity; at the present time, the mode of distribution is 79 per cent by gravity and 21 percent by pumping.

In order to utilize the full potential of the source of supply, several major construction projects were completed between 1968 and 1970, consisting of a $1,150,000 Raw Water Booster Pumping Station at the base of Gainer Dam, the supplemental tunnel and aqueduct, and additions and improvements at the water purification works; the cost of the latter two projects amounted to $16,650,000. The pumping station houses units with a total capacity of 160,000,000 gallons daily and a 2,300 horsepower emergency diesel driven generator. The 78-inch section of aqueduct will handle 50,000,000 gallons per day, while the 102-inch diameter portion has a capacity of 100,000,000 gallons daily. Total transmission capacity is 200 million gallons per day, sufficient to meet the 144,000,000 gallons maximum day output of the plant and 56,000,000 gallons per day from a future additional source of supply.

Under a resolution initiated in the City Council and approved Jan. 7, 1913, the preliminary investigation was started for the reservoir project, and the Water Supply Board was created and its powers defined by Chapter 1278, Public Laws, 1915. This board organized and began its work April 26, 1915. The reservoir construction was carried on under the direction of Frank E. Winsor as Chief Engineer of the board, who resigned Sept. 30, 1926, the same day on which the main reservoir was placed in commission.

The reservoir construction was completed and the facility turned over to the Department of Public Works for operation on June 10, 1929. The Department of Public Works continued the operation of the supply until Feb. 6, 1941 when a Water Supply Board established under the new City Charter was organized.

On Oct. 15, 1949, the dam on the main reservoir was dedicated to the memory of the late Mayor Joseph H. Gainer under whose administration the dam was built and the present water supply system created.

Fluoridation of the water began Aug. 13, 1952 after the move had been approved by public and private health, dental and medical groups, and by cities and towns which use water supplied by Providence.

On Oct. 20, 1954, the administration and operations building at 552 Academy Ave. was officially opened. This building, housing all departments of the Water Supply Board, was completed at a cost of $349,115.

On Aug. 22, 1962, the additions, alterations and improvements at the water purification works in Scituate were officially dedicated. The cost of these improvements was about $2,070,000.

On Oct. 17, 1962, the 40,030,000 gallon Aqueduct Distribution Reservoir was placed in operation. This reservoir, completed at a cost of $1,753,000 increased the total distribution storage to 90,550,000 gallons.

A resolution sponsored by Mayor Joseph A. Doorley Jr., and enacted by the city council, rededicated the treatment complex as the Philip J. Holton Water Purification Works. This ceremony honoring the retired, long-time chief engineer was held May 23, 1969 at the plant in Scituate.

ANNEXATION TO PROVIDENCE

Eight times since its incorporation as a city, Providence has annexed portions of adjoining towns. The first annexation occurred on June 10, 1868, when a section of Cranston was taken. This is divided between the Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth and Eleventh Wards and includes the area south of a line beginning at Terrace Avenue and Cumerford Street and extending easterly to the Providence Harbor line, the area now known as Elmwood and South Providence.

On March 28, 1873, a part of North Providence, Swan Point Cemetery and North Burial Ground was taken into the city. On March 25, 1873, a second section of Cranston was annexed and on May 1, 1874, a second section of North Providence was taken into the city. May 6, 1887, the city obtained a third section of Cranston, that section taking in Cunliff's Pond which was added to Roger Williams Park. July 1, 1892, a fourth annexation from Cranston, of three-quarters of a mile, was taken and added to the park.

On June 1, 1898, the town of Johnston gave up a large section. This area lies beyond Olneyville Square, toward Thornton, at that time known as West Providence. On April 16, 1919, the city annexed a portion of Neutaconkanut Park from the town of Johnston.

PROVIDENCE CEMETERIES

Grace Church Cemetery, Elmwood Avenue and Broad Street; Hebrew Cemetery, 375 Reservoir Ave.; Locust Grove Cemetery, 446 Elmwood Ave.; North Burial Ground, Branch Avenue and North Main Street; St. Patrick's Cemetery, Douglas Avenue Blackstone Boulevard.

SEVEN HILLS OF PROVIDENCE

Providence is said to have been built on seven hills. They are Prospect or College Hill, Constitution Hill, Tockwotten Hill at Fox Point, Smith Hill, Federal Hill, Christian Hill at Hoyle Square, junction of Cranston and Westminster Street, and Weybosset Hill at lower end of Weybosset Street. Weybosset Hill was leveled in the early 1880's to construct the Turks Head Building.

HIGHEST POINTS

The three highest points in Providence above sea level are: Neutaconkanut Hill, 252.99 ft., southeast curb intersection of Hope Street and Doyle Avenue, 199.87 ft.; west curb on Smith Street at city line, 187.81 ft.

LATITUDE-LONGITUDE

Ladd Observatory, 214 Doyle Avenue is in latitude 41 degrees 50'16" and longitude 71 degrees 24'0".

GEOGRAPHICAL CENTER

The geographical center of Providence was once at the corner of Atwells Avenue and Bourne Street, now no longer there since the building of Route 95. According to the engineering firm, CA. Maguire & Associates, which designed the highway, this intersection would now be the curb of the northbound lane of Route 95 below the Atwells Avenue overpass.

PORT OF PROVIDENCE

The Port of Providence, third largest in New England in tonnage handled after Portland and Boston, is a deep-water port connected with the Atlantic Ocean 27 miles to the south by a ship channel with a minimum depth of 40 feet at mean low water through the Providence River, Narragansett Bay and Block Island Sound. In use almost since Providence was founded in 1636, the port today has 25 wharves and docks for accommodating medium and deep-draft vessels, and about 10½ miles of commercial waterfront almost evenly divided between Providence and East Providence.

The port has no scheduled passenger service, except for summer excursion vessels operated between Providence, Newport and Block Island since 1934 by Interstate Navigation Co.

The port has two towing firms and two stevedore firms employing more than 200 casual and full-time longshoremen. Fire protection for ships and shore facilities is by the Providence and East Providence fire departments, equipped with motorboats. Pilotages are furnished by a state pilot association, operating chiefly from Newport.

Dredging supervised by the Army Corp of Engineers to deepen the 17-mile channel to the port from 35 to 40 feet at low tide to handle deep-draft tankers was completed in 1971 at a cost of about $18 million, except for rock outcrops remaining at Rumstick Reach, which were removed in 1975.

Petrolane Inc. in November, 1972, took its first delivery of liquefied propane gas at its new 400,000 barrel terminal constructed earlier in the year. Also, Providence Gas Co. and Algonquin Gas Transmission Co. completed construction of a 600,000 barrel storage tank for liquefied natural gas in 1973.

Henry W. Fazzano was appointed executive director of the port in June, 1985.

Municipal Wharf

The Municipal Wharf, occupying city land at Fields Point on the west bank of the Providence River, has been owned and operated by the city since 1916 and is the port's largest facility for handling dry cargo as well as petroleum products, on ocean going vessels.

The wharf can accommodate six Liberty type vessels and has about 50 acres of open, paved storage space. The granite block quay, originally 3,000 feet long, was extended to 4,300 feet between 1938 and 1941 and to its present length of 4,750 feet in 1961-62 under a $2 million bond issue approved in 1954. The ship berths have a depth of 30 feet at the north end 35 feet at the south end at mean low water.

At the general election in 1972, city voters approved a $6.5 million bond issue to extend the seawall, add two 600-foot deep water berths and build a new transit shed. Voters also approved a $1.5 million bond issue for new fender piles and butts for the pier facing and repair work on existing transit sheds. In 1974, a $2 million bond issue was passed for further improvements.

Facilities include a small, one-story concrete building, built with federal aid in 1936, and three brick and steel transit sheds. Also 7½ miles of tracks connect the port with the Conrail System, and two city highways lead to U. S. Route 1A or Allens Avenue, and thence to Interstate 95.

Repairs on two transit sheds and the former Port Administration Building were accomplished in 1976. Also that year, plans to extend the seawall and construct two new berths were scrapped, because environmental considerations had ruled out offshore dumping of polluted sludge that would be dredged from the area. Instead, three existing berths have been dredged to a depth of 40 feet and the smaller amount of sludge was spread over city-owned land adjacent to the wharf. A new freight terminal which includes limited passenger ship facilities and houses administrative offices opened in 1981.

During the fiscal year ended June 30, 1985, gross revenue totaled $1.7 million, a decrease of $129,000 from the previous year. The Municipal Wharf handled 1.6 million tons of cargo of all kinds in fiscal 1984, compared to 1.3 million tons during the previous fiscal year. This total does not include petroleum products handled in East Providence.

THE DEXTER DONATION

The town of Providence in 1824 was bequeathed more than 2,275,000 square feet of land in various parts of the city by Ebenezer Knight Dexter. The largest tract at Hope and Angell Streets and Lloyd and Arlington Avenues contained 1,692,173 square feet and was given for use as a poor farm.

After a special investigating committee condemned the farm as obsolete as a home for the aged poor, the city council in 1947 instituted court action seeking permission to sell the property and use the proceeds in a manner as close as possible to the intent of the donor. As a result, the farm property was sold Sept. 26, 1957 to Brown University on a high bid of $1,000,777.

Another tract in the donation is the Dexter Training Grounds which comprises 420,528 square feet at Dexter and Parade Streets and Hollywood Road, and the State Armory. According to a provision in the Dexter will, the grounds must be kept for the training of militia and no permanent buildings may be erected there. Other sundry properties in the donation, some of them leased to private tenants, bring the total land currently in the donation to 584,414 square feet.

PARKS

INDIA POINT PARK — About 12 acres along the shoreline of India Point running westward from the Seekonk River, south of Route 195. Dedicated and opened in 1974, the park has an outdoor concert area, a dock, a playing field, walkways and benches overlooking the northern reaches of Narragansett Bay. A pedestrian bridge over Route 195 has been constructed to link the park with George M. Cohan Boulevard just behind the Fox Point School.

Purchase of the park land became possible after a donation of $150,000 to the city by Mrs. Henry D. Sharpe in January, 1970. The city allocated another $150,000 to the project, and applied for federal funds to match the total. A private fund drive also was conducted, and donations were received from state Green Acres funds and the Rockefeller Foundation. About one million dollars was raised to buy the land from two railroad companies and construct the park.

Albert Veri, a landscape architect, designed the park. The Campanella Corp. was the construction contractor.

ROGER WILLIAMS NATIONAL MEMORIAL — Roger Williams National Memorial was authorized by Congress in 1965. The land was purchased by the National Park Service in December, 1974. The park covers 4½ acres, mostly open, in downtown Providence. Exhibits and a brief slide show introduce the major contributions of Roger Williams.

Presently there is a visitors center, located at 282 North Main St., at the site of the Roger Williams Spring. The center was constructed in a restored 18th century building. The center is staffed and provides brochures and other information about the memorial.

Hahn Memorial on the national memorial grounds marks the site of the "spring of fresh water" once used by the Williams family, whose house stood across North Main Street, then called Towne Street, opposite the spring. Almost the entire village of Providence, including Williams' homestead, was destroyed during "King Philip's War" in 1676. Since then, any remaining vestige of the village of Providence as Roger Williams knew it, was obliterated by the 300-years growth of the city of Providence.

A national memorial, unlike a national park or monument is not established to preserve a natural resource, but to commemorate an individual or an ideal. The Rogers Williams Memorial is intended to memorialize Roger Williams' ideals of freedom of religion and citizen participation in government.

ROGER WILLIAMS PARK — About 4,431,014 square feet of land which became the nucleus for this park was bequeathed to the city under the will of Betsey Williams, who died in November, 1871. On this property was the red house now called the Betsey Williams Cottage built by Nathaniel Williams about 1773 for his son, James, father of Betsey. A gift of 8,285 square feet of land was made in 1880 by John M. and Susan P. Clemens. The rest of the park was acquired by purchase or condemnation, the latest acquisition in 1927 when the city bought the Potter Farm of 19 acres at the Cranston end of the park. There are 430 acres in the park, of which 103 are water.

There are nine lakes in the park; Roosevelt Lake near Elmwood Avenue, formerly known as "Bandstand Lake", Polo Lake, the Zoo Swamp, Willow Lake, Pleasure Lake, more commonly called "Boathouse Lake", Cunliff Lake, south of Pleasure Lake and Deep Spring Lake, near Park Avenue, sometimes called "No Bottom Lake". Surrounding Noonan Island, in the southeast section of the park are Edgewood and Elm Lakes.

The city erected a statue of Roger Williams in 1876-77; a barn and deer park in 1890-91; a museum building in 1894-95; a casino in 1897-98; and the Dalrymple Boathouse in 1897. The "Temple of Music" was given by the will of William C. Benedict in 1922 and was dedicated in 1924. The boathouse and the "Temple of Music" were completely restored in 1977.

The Tim O'Neil Baseball Field at the foot of Hawthorne Street, west of the park tennis courts, was dedicated in September, 1946, in honor of the man who was for 44 years president of the Providence Amateur Baseball League.

The Park Zoo, at the Elmwood Avenue entrance, features facilities containing over 200 animal and bird specimens. A new children's Nature Center with a miniature farm and special displays on how animals move, a North American mammal exhibit with a spectacular polar bear display, and a free flight bird refuge opened in 1979.

The Park Museum houses exhibitions related to natural history, a new earth science hall, a modern auditorium rebuilt in 1978, a major oceanographic hall, "The Narragansett Bay Room". The Charles H. Smith Greenhouse exhibits a wide variety of tropical and domestic plants. Also of interest are the Hartman and two Japanese Gardens which present seasonal displays of flowers and plantings. The "Temple of Music" hosts numerous musical and performing events during the summer.

The Dalrymple Boathouse, restored in 1979, houses the offices of the Dept. of Public Parks, rest rooms and boat rentals.

The Casino, restored in 1983, was reopened as an indoor facility for the performing arts and available for use by non-profit organizations and individuals for a modest rental.

All facilities are open from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. daily, except Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's and are free.

HISTORIC STREETS

Benefit Street — Constructed in 1856 for the benefit of those who had built homes on the side-hill, it wound and twisted to avoid ancestral graveyeards. Later straightened when inmates of graves were removed to North Burial Ground.

Prospect Street — Laid out from Olney Street to Jail Lane, now Meeting Street, in 1771.

Towne Street — (Now North and South Main Street) was first shore road from Fox Point into the country.

Westminster Street — ordered laid out 1706 and in 1763 lottery was established "for rendering possible and commodious a straight and very fine street from the Great Bridge into the country." The amount to be raised was 600 pounds of sterling.

Weybosset Street — Name derived from Wapwayset (also spelled Weypoiset). Originally the Wapwayset Indian trail which followed the pathway that led to what is known as Elmwood, but in 1661 and for many years later known as "Weybosset Plaine."

POINT STREET VIADUCT

Connecting the west end of the Point Street Bridge with Allens Avenue, the viaduct was opened formally on Nov. 3, 1940. A two-lane overhead highway, 15 feet above street level, it was built as a PWA project at a total cost of $870,000, of which $270,000 was a federal grant. Since the opening of Interstate Route 195, the need to route heavy traffic over the busy Point Street-Allens Avenue intersection has decreased and the viaduct was torn down in the summer of 1979.

HISTORICAL DATA

One of four original towns of Rhode Island, Warwick, after 190 years as a township, became Rhode Island's seventh city with the ratification of the City Charter Act on April 22, 1931.

Warwick dates back to Jan. 12, 1642 when Samuel Gorton purchased from Miantonomi the Shawomet land, named Warwick, in honor of the Earl of Warwick. The town of Warwick was divided March 14, 1913, the present city retaining the name of Warwick, and the new town that of West Warwick. In May, 1930, the taxpayers in financial meeting, authorized the introduction of the City Charter Act in the General Assembly.

HISTORICAL FACTS

Woonsocket, sixth largest city in the state, was set off from Cumberland and Smithfield in 1867 and incorporated as a city in 1888. The name, of Indian origin, means "thunder mist."

The city has an area of 8.8 square miles. Located on the northern boundary of the state, it is 15 miles from Providence, 35 miles from Boston and 25 miles from Worcester.

The Blackstone River, which courses throughout most of the city, and many hills are distinctly topographical features.

The first European settlers in the area which was inhabited by the Nipmuc Indians, were Richard Arnold and Samuel Comstock in 1666.

Woonsocket, a manufacturing city, is made up predominantly of Franco-Americans whose forebearers came from Canada to work in the textile mills. It is the national headquarters for L'Union St. Jean Baptiste, Franco-American Society.

The city is the commercial center for a large area of northern Rhode Island and south-central Massachusetts. In 1953, it became the first city in Rhode Island to operate under a home rule charter.

A multi-million-dollar urban renewal project was undertaken in the Social Flatlands section of the city downtown beginning in 1970 and now is largely complete. City officials consider this a major step in the commercial rebirth of Woonsocket. The textile industry is leading employer with apparel, machinery, plastics and electronics making up the bulk of the remainder.

Yesterday, the greatest question was decided which ever was debated in America, and a greater perhaps never was nor will be decided among men. A resolution was passed without one dissenting colony, "that these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent States."

John Adams, Letter to Abigail Adams, July 3, 1776.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION — 1986

Voters in 1984 approved a referendum calling for a constitutional convention. At the 1985 General Assembly session, legislation was passed setting November 5, 1985 as the date for a nonpartisan election to choose convention delegates, one from each of the 100 legislative districts. 562 persons filed as candidates.

The convention convened January 6, 1986. Keven A. McKenna, Providence was chosen as chairman of the convention. The convention authorized the chairman to appoint a nine member rules committee to draft permanent rules. The rules committee members are: Thomas J. Izzo, Cranston, chairman; Dr. Melvyn M. Gelch, Providence; Rose Ellen A. Reynolds, Cranston; Camillo A. Pierannunzi, Woonsocket; Karen J. Kolek, Pawtucket; Roberto Gongalez, Providence; Vincent Marzilli, Warwick; Clifton R. Largess Jr., Jamestown; Duncan H. Doolittle, South Kingstown and McKenna.

BARRINGTON COLLEGE

Middle Highway
Barrington, RI 02806

Barrington College, founded in 1900, was a four-year co-educational, Christian liberal arts school, located in Barrington. Faced with a decline in enrollment, trustees decided in the fall of 1984 to close the campus and merge its programs with Gordon College of Wenham, Mass. The last Barrington College class graduated in May, 1985.

In October, 1985, Zion Bible Institute of East Providence paid $5.25 million for the 106-acre Barrington College campus. The purchase agreement ended more than six months of negotiations.

BROWN UNIVERSITY

Providence, RI 02912

Brown University was founded in 1764 at Warren, first named Rhode Island College, renamed as Brown in 1804 in honor of Nicholas Brown, an original incorporator and benefactor. It is the seventh oldest college in the United States.

The first class was graduated in 1769. In 1770 the college moved to Providence, housed in what is now University Hall, a building designated as a national historic landmark. During the Revolution the college was closed and University Hall was occupied by American and French troops as a barracks and hospital.

Granted an original charter guaranteeing uninterrupted liberty of conscience, the college's charter was further amended in 1926 and 1942 removing all denominational restrictions for the presidency and membership in the corporation.

The university has an undergraduate college and the graduate school for men and women, established as a separate school in 1927. Pembroke College was merged with Brown in July, 1971, making the university fully coeducational for the first time since the establishment of Pembroke in 1891.

Curriculum

Candidates for the following degrees are enrolled at the university: Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, Master of Arts, Master of Science, Master of Arts in Teaching, Master of Medical Science, Doctor of Medicine, Doctor of Philosophy, and Doctor of Arts. Students may elect to take a five-year course leading to both degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science in several categories. Five-year courses leading to both B.S. and M.S. degrees also are offered for engineering students interested in applied research.

Brown awards the Bachelor of Arts degree in more than 60 areas of the humanities, social sciences, mathematics, and natural and physical sciences. The Bachelor of Science is conferred in applied mathematics, engineering, psychology, chemistry, pure mathematics, biology, physics, and geological sciences. In addition, there are extensive opportunities for self-designed independent concentration programs.

A seven-year M.D. degree program was inaugurated in the fall of 1973 with the first 58 M.D.'s graduated in June, 1975. The 1985 graduating class included 78 M.D.'s. The M.D. degree program is an expansion of the six-year Master of Medical Science program begun at Brown in 1963. Eight area hospitals are affiliated with Brown's medical school, together with a number of other health facilities in the New England area.

Under a variety of grants, the university conducts programs for training of secondary school teachers through a graduate summer school, internship training involving interchange of experienced and pre-service teachers, special training for teachers of science and mathematics and also a five-year master's degree program.

Enrollment

The 1985 enrollment was 7,163. This includes 5,619 undergraduates, 1,254 in the graduate school and 290 in the Program in Medicine.

Faculty

The faculty numbers over 600 with more than 80 percent holding doctorates.

Tuition

Tuition is $10,825 per year. Room and board is $3,695.

Endowment

As of June, 1985, the endowment totalled $230 million.

Buildings and Grounds

University Hall, one of the fine examples in the country of Colonial collegiate architecture, was the sole building on the campus until 1822 when Hope College was built. Manning Hall, the third building, was constructed in 1834.

Today there are more than 146 College buildings. Eighty of these are part of the original college campus, bounded approximately by Hope and Prospect Streets on the east and west, and Waterman and Charlesfield Streets on the north and south. Twenty buildings are on the Pembroke campus, bounded approximately by Thayer and Brown Streets on the east and west, and Bowen and Meeting Streets on the north and south. Other noteworthy buildings include the Barus and Holley Building, housing physics and engineering; the John Hay Library; the Rockefeller Library; Faunce House, headquarters for social and recreational activities of undergraduates and for student organizations; the John Carter Brown Library; the Jesse Metcalf Chemical Laboratory; the Walter S. Hunt Laboratory of Psychology; Gardner House, the university guest house; Alumnae Hall; Marvel Gymnasium; Andrews Hall; and the 14-story Science Library.

Another 27 buildings were added to Brown's facilities in October 1971 when the university purchased the entire campus of Bryant College for $5,102,204.

The Brown University Computer Center, containing an IBM 3081, Model D16 and the Richard Vial House was renovated in 1979 to house the Department of Computer Science. In 1983, the Gould Computer laboratory, which houses Foxboro Auditorium-the world's first instructional laboratory service by a high speed local area computer network-opened. In 1984, Darling House was renovated to house the Institute for Research in Information and Scholarship (IRIS), which oversees the campus-wide experiment in scholarly computing. The George V. Meehan Auditorium was completed in the fall of 1961. The Frank John Prince Engineering Laboratory and the J. Walter Wilson Biology Laboratory were completed in 1962. The new Geology-Chemistry Building, which houses departmental offices and laboratories, was opened in 1982.

Two modern dormitory units, Woolley and Emery Halls, were added in 1963 to Morriss and Champlin Halls, which were dedicated in 1960. The first portions of the new Pembroke dormitory complex were opened in September, 1974.

The Wriston Quadrangle, providing accommodations for 925 students, was completed in 1952. The quadrangle is unique in that it includes 15 fraternities as well as nine dormitory sections and the Sharpe Refectory.

The Keeny Triangle formerly known as the West Quadrangle was completed in the fall of 1957. It houses 547 students, both freshmen and upperclassmen and includes six connected houses with two inner courts.

The graduate center complex was dedicated in the fall of 1968. It houses some 450 students in four separate dormitories, all connected to a multipurpose commons building.

A new bio-medical center, containing a four-story research tower, two below-ground teaching floors, and a five-story animal care facility, opened in 1969. A new center for Health Care Studies, housing lecture halls, classrooms, and offices for several health care projects, was added to the Bio-Med Center in February, 1982.

The Albert and Vera List Art Building, a five-story structure housing the University's programs in studio art and art history, was opened in 1971. The David Winton Bell Gallery is located on the first floor of the List Building.

New performing arts centers at Lyman Hall and on the East Campus were dedicated in April 1979, ending a $2.9 million renovation project assisted by a challenge grant from the Kresge Foundation.

Library

The libraries of the university contain about 3,900,000 volumes and other catalogued items. The John D. Rockefeller Jr. Library, named for Mr. Rockefeller of the class of 1897, contains the general collection in the humanities, social sciences, and fine arts. The John Hay Library contains a number of notable collections. The John Carter Brown Library has the premier collection of Americana in the world, with more than 40,000 books, maps and manuscripts dealing with American history up to about 1800. The Annmary Brown Memorial, transferred from private hands to the university in 1948, has one of the world's finest collections of incunabula. The Mathematics Library also has a notable collection in its field. The 14-story Science Library was opened in 1972.

Museum

Brown owns about 500 acres of land at Bristol donated by the R.F. Haffenreffer Family Foundation and the Haffenreffer Museum, containing a museum collection of American Indian objects and lore from all parts of the United States. It also houses a variety of other anthropological items.

Computing Facilities

In 1981, the university installed a campus-wide coaxial cable network to provide computer services to all 126 buildings on campus. The network, "BRUNET," is the largest and most heavily used university broadband network in the world.

In 1983, with the help of several computer companies, the university began a campus wide experiment creating and testing new ways to use computers for teaching and scholarship. At the heart of the experiment is the development of the "scholars workstation," a small simple-to-operate computer that provides access to a wide range of communication and information services. The Institute for Research in Information and Scholarship (IRIS), which oversees the scholarly computing experiment, opened in 1984.

Laboratories

The original charter of the University contains the provision, "the public teaching shall in general respect the sciences." As a result, the University has always emphasized instruction in science. It possesses modern laboratory facilities for experimental work in applied mathematics, astronomy, physics, chemistry, geology, biology, botany, psychology and engineering.

Athletic Facilities

Facilities for physical education and athletic activity include a 20,000-seat football stadium, Marvel Gymnasium, containing three basketball courts, indoor track; fencing facilities, squash and handball courts; wrestling floor, boxing rooms, and special exercise rooms; intramural athletic field and tennis courts; George V. Meehan auditorium and skating arena, located at the Aldrich-Dexter athletic field; and Hunter S. Marston Boathouse on the Seekonk River. Another gymnasium, field house, playing field, and tennis courts are located on the former Pembroke campus.

The Olney-Margolies Athletic Center, dedicated in October, 1981, contains a 54,000-square-foot fieldhouse which can be used as a track, basketball courts, tennis courts, volleyball courts, and batting and golf cages, and a 1.8-acre rooftop playing field. It also contains a dance studio and nautilus and universal exercise rooms.

A fleet of 18 dinghies make possible intramural and intercollegiate regattas under the sponsorship of the Brown Yacht Club.

BRYANT COLLEGE

Smithfield, RI 02917

Founded in 1863, Bryant College is a non-profit institution operating under a Board of Trustees. It is a coeducational college of business administration and liberal arts. Bryant College is located on a 295-acre campus in suburban Smithfield. The college is fully accredited and offers associate's, bachelor's, and master's degree programs.

Curriculum

The undergraduate academic program leads to the Bachelor of Science in business administration degree and offers major concentrations in accounting; applied actuarial mathematics; business communications; computer information systems; economics; finance; hotel, restaurant, and institutional management; management; and marketing.

Evening Division

The Evening Division offers Bachelor of Science and Associate in Science in Business Administration degrees in accounting; computer information systems; economics; finance; hotel, restaurant, and institutional management; management; marketing; transportation and traffic management, and a major in a general program. The Evening Division also offers degrees of Bachelor of Science in office administration, Bachelor of Science in criminal justice and Associate in Science in criminal justice. Courses are offered at Smithfield and in Warwick.

Enrollment

Bryant enrolls approximately 3,000 in the Day school and 1,900 in the Evening Division, and 1,400 in the Graduate School.

Graduate School

Advanced programs in the Graduate School lead to the degree of Master of Business Administration (M.B.A.) with concentrations in accounting, finance, management, health care management, computer information systems and entrepreneurship, and the degree of Master of Science in Taxation (M.S.T). Since most students have full-time positions, courses are offered in the afternoons, evenings and Saturdays on campus and off-campus at the Naval Education and Training Center, Newport; the Junior Achievement Building, 270 Weybosset St., Providence, and Rhode Island Hospital, Providence.

Center for Management Development

Professional workshops, seminars, and conferences provide professional continuing education for individuals in a variety of fields and specializations. Professional continuing education courses are also offered through the Center at its Warwick facility and on the Smithfield campus.

Small Business Development Center

The Small Business Development Center (SBDC) at Bryant provides free consulting and low-cost business development seminars to Rhode Island's small business entrepreneurs and operators. Counseling and training includes such areas as personnel, finance, marketing, organization, production, accounting and technical assistance.

Faculty

The faculty numbers approximately 160 in the Day school, 125 in the Evening Division, and 70 in the Graduate School. It includes teachers of liberal arts studies, certified public accountants, lawyers, and business specialists.

Tuition and Fees

Tuition for fall and spring semesters is $5,100. A supplement is prepared annually for Intersession and Summer Session fees. Board and room for fall and spring semesters range from $3,180 to $4,285, depending on living accommodations. Scholarships, loans and self-help opportunities are available.

Officers and Administration

Buildings and Grounds

Bryant moved to its Smithfield Campus in the fall of 1971. The hub of the new campus is the "Unistructure" which includes a rotunda large enough to hold 1,200 persons, classrooms, a library with a capacity for 100,000 volumes, special study rooms, dining facilities, indoor pool and locker rooms, student lounges, laboratories, faculty and administration offices and auditoriums. The Management Resource Complex, built in 1984, is also housed in the Unistructure.

The dormitory complex is adjacent to the main building. Each dormitory is four stories high and is designed in suite arrangements. Each suite consists of a living room and three bedrooms. These 13 dormitories also contain lounges and study areas.

Townhouses provide another living option. They accomodate 250 students. Each air-conditioned unit contains four bedrooms, a living-dining room and completely equipped modern kitchen.

The freshmen dormitory is a four-story brick building with two separate residence wings connected by a huge main lounge. Designed to house 300 students, the dormitory bedrooms are interconnected by central lounges. The dormitory meets all federal regulations for the handicapped.

Koffler Student Center, a sixteen-sided, three-level wooo sheathed building for student activities, includes a snack bar, modern pub, game room, bowling alleys, open lounge area, concert and mixer areas, and outdoor patio. It will be converted into a state-of-the-art computer center after construction of a new student union, the Bryant Center, is completed. Both centers will be completed by the fall of 1986.

The Multipurpose Activities Center (MAC) houses indoor basketball and tennis courts, racquetball courts, the student radio station (WJMF), the student newspaper (THE ARCHWAY), as well as numerous student offices.

Student Activities and Athletics

Varsity teams, nicknamed "The Indians," compete in baseball, basketball, bowling, cross-country, golf, tennis, track, soccer and volleyball. A separate women's varsity program consists of teams in tennis, field hockey, volleyball, basketball, soccer, cross-country, track and softball. Intramural softball, basketball, volleyball, football and bowling teams compete for annual trophies. Among campus organizations are 14 fraternities and sororities, student programming and government boards and religious, musical, dramatic and professional groups.

COMMUNITY COLLEGE OF RHODE ISLAND

Knight Campus, 400 East Ave., Warwick, RI 02886
Flanagan Campus, 1762 Louisquisset Pike, Lincoln, RI 02865

Community College of Rhode Island was founded under authority of the Rhode Island Legislature in 1960 with its original name Rhode Island Junior College. The name was officially changed to Community College of Rhode Island in June of 1980 to better describe the scope of services that the college provides to all Rhode Islanders.

The first campus of Community College of Rhode Island opened its doors in the fall of 1964 with temporary quarters in Providence and the first graduation was held in June of 1966. The first permanent campus of Community College of Rhode Island opened in September, 1972, and is known as Knight Campus, located in Warwick adiacent to Rts. 95 and 295. A second permanent campus in the Blackstone Valley area in Lincoln was opened in September, 1976, and is known as the Dr. William F. Flanagan campus. Satellite campuses are located in Barrington, Burrillville, East Providence, Middletown, Providence, Westerly, and Woonsocket.

The college offers Associate in Arts, the Associate in Fine Arts, the Associate in Science and the Associate in Applied Science degrees at the culmination of two years of college. CCRI offers career oriented programs in technical education, which provide students with a sequential offering related courses in the areas of mathematics, science, communications and general subjects. These offerings prepare students for entry level positions in a variety of technical occupations. Students completing two-year programs are awarded a diploma; students completing programs of less than a two-year duration are awarded a certificate.

Enrollment

From an original enrollment of 325 students, the college has expanded to more than 12,000 full and part-time students.

Faculty

There are almost 375 members of the faculty and administration in the current school year.

Tuition and Fees

The college is supported by appropriations from the General Assembly, but tuition and fees of $790 are charged to full-time students for the 1985-86 academic year.

Admissions Requirements

A high school diploma or its equivalent is required for the following programs: Nursing-Associate degree, Nursing-Practical, Medical Laboratory Technician, Radiography (X-Ray), Respiratory Therapy and Dental Assistant. In addition, individual departments may have specific admission requirements that students must meet.

Athough a high-school diploma or its equivalent is not a general admission requirement of the College, provided the student is 18 years of age, it should be noted that financial aid applicants, intercollegiate athletic participants, applicants for veterans' benefits and in some cases students applying for transfer to some senior colleges must show evidence of a high school diploma or its equivalent.

All applicants to the Community College must be Rhode Island residents or qualify under the New England Board of Higher Education's Regional Student Program.

Officers and Administration

Community College of Rhode Island is governed by the Board of Governors for Higher Education.

NEW ENGLAND INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY

184 Early St.
Providence, RI 02907

The New England Institute of Technology is a private, non-profit technical college offering courses of study at both the associate and the baccalaureate degree levels. New England Tech is the only college in Rhode Island accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges, Inc., and by the Accrediting Commission of the National Association of Trade and Technical Schools.

The college was founded in 1940 as the New England Technical Institute, a post-secondary technical school offering courses in oil burner maintenance and repair. In 1971 under the leadership of a new administration, the Institute began a period of intense development. The results of this effort were the complete renovation of the educational facilities and curriculum; the addition and expansion of the course offerings; the authority to offer Associate in Science degrees, granted by the Board of Regents of the State of Rhode Island in 1977; and the development of a modern campus in Warwick. In 1983, New England Tech received the authority to grant the Bachelor of Science degree.

Curriculum

The college awards the Associate in Science degree in the following technologies: Administrative Assistant; Administrative Medical Assistant; Architectural Drafting; Automotive; Building Construction/Cabinetmaking; Computer Programing; Electronics; Electrical; Electro-Mechanical Drafting; Marine Management; Mechanical Drafting; Plumbing/Heating; and Refrigeration/Air Conditioning/Heating. The college started its first Bachelor's Degree programs in Electronics Engineering and Computer Programming Technologies in the fall of 1984.

The Associate in Science Degree program at New England Tech consists of two academic years of six quarters, and can be completed in eighteen months in either day or evening sessions. The Bachelor of Science Degree program requires an additional eighteen months of training beyond the Associate's Degree.

The Major Home Appliance program is a 20 week course which meets three nights a week. A diploma is awarded at the conclusion of the course.

Enrollment

The annual enrollment at New England Tech is approximately 2,000 students.

Faculty

There are 45 full-time trained professionals on the New England Tech faculty.

Entrance Requirements

The college requires a high school diploma or a General Equivalency Diploma (GED) for admission into the Associate's Degree Program. Entrance into the Bachelor's Degree Program requires an Associate's Degree from New England Tech or from a recognized institution of higher learning. Credit may be extended by the respective department head and the Dean of Academic Affairs for related work experience and courses taken elsewhere.

Tuition

Tuition for incoming freshmen in the fall of 1985 is $4,650 per academic year in the Associate's and Bachelor's Degree program. Tuition for the Major Home Appliance Program is $1,800. The Financial Aid Office offers a full complement of federally-sponsored financial aid programs.

Officers of the Administration

Administrative Officers: President—Richard I. Gouse; Executive Vice President—Seth Kurn; Vice President for Financial Affairs—Cheryl C. Connors; Dean of Academic Affairs—Dr. E. Foster Wiggins; Administrative Vice President—Joy Veaudry; Special Assistant to the President—Dr. Domenic R. DiLuglio; Director of Admissions—Andre Perio; Director of National Student Recruitment and Services—John Anderson; Director of Community Relations—Norman R. Grise; Director of Auxiliary Services—Gerard E. Brisson; Director of Career Planning—Donna DonFrancesco; Registrar—David Cranmer; Director of Financial Aid—Lynn Fawthrop; Director of Student Accounts—Pierre Morin; Learning Resources Center Director—Dr. Ann Dickson; Counselor—Gerry Moody; Admissions Officer—Sean Daugherty; Admissions Officer—David Grollman; Admissions Officer—Jay Keough; Admissions Officer—David Loranger; Admissions Officer—Charles McGrath; Admissions Officer—Robert Remick; Admissions Officer—Louis Sarrault; Admissions Officer—Michele Stabile; and Housing Coordinator—Pamela St. Ours.

Buildings and Grounds

New England Tech has two campuses in Rhode Island. Its administrative offices are located at 184 Early St. in Providence. Located here in a 20,000-square-foot facility are laboratories and classrooms for the Refrigeration, Plumbing, Heating, Electrical and the early quarters of the Electronics Technology programs. Parking facilities adjacent to this campus provide free off-street parking for approximately 200 cars.

The Warwick campus, developed since 1981, now has four buildings on approximately 10 acres of land. Located here are the Admissions Office and laboratories and classrooms for the Administrative Assistant, Administrative Medical Assistant, Computer Programming, Architectural, Electro-Mechanical, Mechanical Drafting, Electronics, Building Construction and Cabinetmaking, Marine Management and Automotive technologies. This facility also houses a microcomputer laboratory featuring Wang, Lanier and IBM personal computers, and a Computer Assisted Drafting Laboratory featuring IBM, Bruning and AutoCAD.

The most recent addition to this campus is the Learning Resources Center which was dedicated in 1985.

Library

The college's new Learning Resources Center was opened in the fall of 1985, and features one of the most extensive collections in the technical skills in the area. The Learning Resources Center is equipped to handle an up-to-date audio-visual and computerized library system.

Laboratories

The educational programs at New England Tech emphasize hands-on training and utilize the latest in modern equipment and spacious well-lit laboratories. Students spend almost 50 percent of their time in a laboratory setting.

PROVIDENCE COLLEGE

River Avenue at Eaton Street
Providence, RI 02918

Founded by the late Right Rev. Matthew Harkins, Bishop of the Diocese of Providence, Providence College is the only institution of higher education in North America to be conducted under the auspices of the Dominican Fathers and Brothers, a Catholic order whose origin dates back to the thirteenth century.

The charter, granted the college by the Rhode Island General Assembly in 1917, defines as the college's mission "the promotion of virtue and piety and learning." The college corporation is empowered to confer such degrees as are usually awarded by colleges and universities.

The college opened in September 1919 with an enrollment of 71, a faculty of nine, and a single building located on 17 wooded acres. The college became co-educational in the fall of 1971.

Curriculum

The college's undergraduate program offers Bachelor of Arts degrees in art and art history, economics, English, general social studies, history, humanities, American studies, biology, chemistry, education, Latin American studies, mathematics, computer science, music, modern languages, philosophy, political science, psychology, religious studies, sociology, social work and theater arts. Bachelor of Science degrees are offered in business administration, engineering, physics, systems, health services administration, biology, and chemistry.

Providence College also conducts an Honors Program for selected superior students who are offered the opportunity to proceed at a more rapid pace and pursue their studies in greater depth than the regular program of study allows.

Among the special programs offered by the college is a four-semester, interdisciplinary course on the "Development of Western Civilization." In cooperation with the Univeristy of Notre Dame, Washington University in St. Louis, and Columbia University, Providence sponsors a five-year engineering/liberal arts program which leads to a B.A. degree in one of seven engineering fields.

In addition, a new 3-4 year co-op program with Georgetown University School of Dentistry enables students to complete the B.S. and D.D.S. degrees in seven years.

A new cooperative program with Columbia University enables Providence College students to receive a B.A. in pre-nursing studies after four years at PC and a B.S. degree in nursing from Columbia University at the end of the fifth year.

A new "Business Studies Program" is also available for non-business majors who wish to pursue an elective business track leading to a certificate of Business Studies.

"Providence-In-Europe" offers junior-year students the opportunity to study abroad at select universities in Switzerland, Italy, Portugal, Japan, Germany, Spain, and England. Credits earned may be applied to their academic program.

School of Continuing Education

The School of Continuing Education affords an individual the opportunity to continue his or her education in any one of a variety of capacities: as a degree candidate in one of the bachelor or associate degree programs; as a student in a non-degree program; or for personal enrichment. Candidates are able to earn bachelor's degrees in the humanities, fine arts, business administration, health services administration, and fire science. Associate's degrees are granted in labor relations, fire safety, nursing home administration, and housekeeping management.

Graduate School

The Graduate School of Providence College exists to develop scholars and teachers to promote scientific research and to provide appropriate opportunities for qualified persons to pursue advanced studies. Courses are open to anyone who fulfills academic requirements for admission.

Master's degrees are offered in business administration, chemistry, education, history and religious studies. Doctoral degrees are offered in chemistry and history.

Enrollment

Enrollment at Providence College is approximately 3,635 undergraduates (fall semester); 494 graduate students (fall semester); and 1,364 students in the School of Continuing Education (fall semester). There are approximately 350 students enrolled in the ROTC program.

Faculty

The full-time faculty numbers 214, including 57 Dominican Fathers, Brothers, and Sisters.

Tuition and Fees

Tuition is $7,003 a year. Room and board is $3,700 a year.

Officers and Administration

Corporation: Chairman—Very Rev. Edward R. Daley; Secretary—Walter F. Gibbons; Treasurer—Rev. John F. Cunningham.

Buildings and Grounds

The college has substantially increased the size of its campus and physical plant with the acquisition of the former Chapin Hospital complex. The former hospital property adjoins the main campus and comprises 20 acres. Eight of the 10 main buildings on the property have been extensively renovated.

The entire campus is 104 acres and is situated at the junction of Eaton Street and River Avenue.

The buildings of the college are: Harkins Hall—administration offices, classrooms, auditorium which has been newly renovated to accomodate the performing arts; Albertus Magnus Hall—classrooms, laboratories, auditorium, offices, and science library; Alumni Hall—gymnasium, athletic offices, students' lounge, cafeteria, barber shop, laundry, ROTC administrative offices, supply classrooms, rifle range, Guild Room of the Thomistic Institute; Antonius Hall—offices, classrooms and laboratories; Aquinas Hall—student and faculty residence, classrooms, study hall, chapel, social lounge, student recreation commons; the Ceramics building; Dominic Hall—faculty residence; Dore Hall—student/faculty residence; East Hall—student residence; Fennell Hall—student residence; Guzman Hall—classrooms, Tutorial Center and student residence; Hickey Research Laboratory; Howley Hall—faculty offices; Hunt-Cavanagh Hall—faculty offices, classrooms, studios, laboratories; Joseph Hall—the Friars radio station, residence for students, chapel, and recreation rooms; Koffler Hall—faculty offices and classrooms.

Recent additions to the campus include Peterson Recreation Center—fieldhouse, swimming pool, racquetball courts, convertible basketball, tennis and volleyball courts and offices; and St. Thomas Aquinas Priory/Gragnani Dominican Center, residence for Dominican Fathers and Brothers.

RHODE ISLAND COLLEGE

600 Mount Pleasant Ave.
Providence, RI 02908

Established in May 1854, Rhode Island College is the oldest public institution of higher education in the state and one of the older colleges in New England.

The College has undergone many changes in mission, purpose, location and name since it opened as the Rhode Island State Normal School. In 1920, the College was chartered as Rhode Island College of Education. In 1960, the institution was renamed Rhode Island College and expanded its degree programs to include the arts and sciences.

Since 1958, Rhode Island College has occupied a 125-acre campus which includes 24 buildings and several athletic and recreational facilities.

Curriculum

Degrees offered include the Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of General Studies, Bachelor of Music in Performance, Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Social Work, Master of Arts, Master of Arts in Teaching, Master of Education, Master of Science, Master of Social Work and Certificate of Advanced Graduate Study. Academic majors in a variety of subjects may be applied to the undergraduate arts degree and student designed concentrations are possible under certain conditions. The Bachelor of Science degree may be earned in accounting, chemistry, computer information systems, computer science, industrial technology, marketing, nursing, management medical technology, radiologic technology, art education, elementary education, elementary school physical education, health education, industrial arts education, music education, special education and vocational-industrial education.

Candidates for the degree programs should be graduates of approved secondary schools and have satisfactory scores on the College Entrance Examination Board Scholastic Aptitude Test.

Undergraduate and graduate programs are available to qualified applicants on a full-time or part-time basis. Persons who do not meet the conventional requirements for college-degree study may qualify through Performance-based Admissions. A wide range of experiences are offered through the School of Continuing Education and Community Service. In addition, Cooperative Education Placements are available.

The college operates the Henry Barnard School which enrolls 335 pupils in primary and elementary grades. Tuition is $1,400 for grades K-6, and enrollment within the child care center program is available at a cost of $1,800 annually.

Administration

The college is administered by the Board of Governors for Higher Education and is organized into four major divisions: Academic Affairs, Student Affairs, Administration and Finance, and College Advancement and Support. The division of academic affairs includes a Faculty of Arts and Sciences, School of Education and Human Development, School of Social Work, School of Graduate Studies and School of Continuing Education and Community Service.

RHODE ISLAND SCHOOL OF DESIGN

2 College St.
Providence, RI 02903

Rhode Island School of Design, incorporated in 1877, is a privately endowed co-educational college providing professional education in visual arts leading to degrees of Bachelor of Industrial Design, Bachelor of Interior Architecture, Bachelor of Architecture, Bachelor of Fine Arts, Bachelor of Landscape Architecture, Master of Fine Arts, Master of Arts in Teaching, and Master of Arts in Art Education and Master of Industrial Design.

The school opened its doors in the Hoppin Homestead Building at 357 Westminster St. and in 1893 relocated at 11 Waterman St. in a new building that now comprises the nucleus of the present college property.

Curriculum

The college offers 18 degree programs in a full range of fine arts, architecture and design disciplines. Professional offerings are balanced with a liberal arts curriculum comprised of art history, English and special studies. Freshmen begin professional preparation with a prescribed curriculum in the Division of Freshman Foundation.

The school maintains a center in Rome where 35 selected juniors and seniors spend a year studying with European artists, supervised by RISD faculty members. A cooperative arrangement permits students of both RISD and Brown University to elect courses at the other institution.

Summer Programs

Summer workshops for credit are offered in a cross section of the arts for college students and adults. A five-week pre-college foundation program is given for high school juniors and seniors.

Art teachers can earn a Masters of Arts in Art Education in a program spanning three consecutive summers. Summer programs abroad are offered. A summer session for fall transfer students is required.

Continuing Education

RISD's Continuing Education program offers a wide variety of credit and non-credit courses, including seven-week mini courses, special events, workshops, six-week culinary arts instruction and a summer program. The Continuing Education faculty is made up of RISD faculty members and local professional artists, architects and designers.

Junior Schools

A Junior School is conducted every Saturday morning for a period of 20 weeks between October and April from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Courses for children 4th through 12th grade are conducted at the college in drawing, painting, nature drawing, figure drawing and modeling in clay.

Enrollment

College enrollment for 1985-86 is approximately 1800. Approximately 2,400 are enrolled in evening extension school, 155 in junior school and 1,500 in the summer program.

Faculty

Faculty consists of 176 men and women. Administration, secretarial and maintenance staffs total 345.

Tuition

Tuition in the regular degree programs is $8,930 a year. The fee in the extension school is $190 per term for non-credit courses and $220 per term credit courses. The junior school fee is $120 which includes materials. Summer workshops are $495. Tuition for the pre-college summer session is $795. Student aid from RISD funds and outside sources is available on the basis of provable need and scholarship.

Endowment

RISD has an endowment fund with a book value of $31,000,000 and a recent estimated market value of $33,750,000 as of June 30, 1985.

Of the 34 buildings comprising the School of Design, 13 are in the blocks bounded by Waterman, Benefit, College, and Canal Streets. The main building on College Hill was dedicated in 1937 in memory of Helen Adelia Rowe Metcalf. Other important buildings include the Waterman Building, erected in 1893; the Metcalf auditorium at Market Square which also houses the video and film studies program; the Jesse Metcalf Memorial Building on North Main Street including the foundry, sculpture, ceramic, glass, wood and metal labs; Memorial Hall at 236 Benefit St. and the adjacent Eliza G. Radeke Memorial Museum of Art with Pendleton House; the 197-year-old Market Building; the former People's Savings Bank; the Bayard Ewing Building which houses the Architectural Studies Division at 231 South Main St., the new dormitories; Benson Hall; Carr House at Waterman and Benefit Streets; the Woods-Gerry House at 62 Prospect St. housing administrative offices and exhibition galleries; the 4-building Design Center between North Main and Canal Streets, currently under renovation; and Tillinghast Place located in Barrington on 33 acres of donated land used for recreation.

Museum of Art

The Museum of Art, at 224 Benefit St., under the directorship of Franklin W. Robinson, is open to the public Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday from 10:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., Thursday from 12 to 8 p.m., and on Sundays and holidays from 2 to 5 p.m. The Museum is closed on Mondays and on New Year's Day, Fourth of July, Thanksgiving Day, and Christmas. June 15 through August, Wednesday-Saturday, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The Museum has developed comprehensive collections ranging from antiquity to the present day and ranks among the finest small museums in the nation. It is known throughout the world for its holdings in Classical art (Greek, Etruscan and Roman); its 19th-century French and American paintings; the Abbey Aldrich Rockefeller Collection of Japanese Bird and Flower Prints; and the Lucy Truman Aldrich Collection of porcelains and textiles. Also important are the Nancy Sayles Day Collection of Modern Latin American Art and the Albert Pilavin Collection of 20th-century American Art. The Museum also possesses galleries devoted to Medieval, Renaissance, Baroque, Far Eastern and ethnographic art, as well as a costume institute and a prints and drawings cabinet of some 8,500 sheets, accompanied by a study room for scholars and students.

An integral part of the Museum is the Pendleton House, added in 1906 to house the Charles L. Pendleton Collection of English and American Furniture. The first collection of its kind to enter an American museum, the Pendleton House was used as the model for the American Wing of the New York Metropolitan Museum of Art.

A lending collection to include documented slide units geared to school curricula, three-dimensional case shows, color reproductions of works of art and a cross-referenced library of over 4,000 color slides is available to primary and secondary schools from the Museum's Education Department and Extension Services. Tours by members of the Museum's staff and volunteer guides may be arranged for special groups. Courses are given for youngsters, high school students and adults. There are informal "Artwalk" tours for children and adults Saturdays at 11 a.m. to 12 noon, and programs for the family most Sundays at 3 p.m. Lunch art tours every Friday at 12:15 p.m.

Library

The library is located on the second floor of the main building at 238 Benefit St. It contains 70,000 volumes; 7,000 bound periodicals; 100,000 slides; and numerous color reproductions, mounted photographs, clippings and recordings. The general public may use the reading room during regular hours, 8:30 a.m. to 11 p.m. Monday through Thursdays; 8:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. Fridays; 12 to 8 p.m. Saturdays, and 2 to 10 p.m. Sundays during the academic year.

ROGER WILLIAMS COLLEGE

Bristol, RI 02809

Roger Williams College is an independent co-educational college of liberal arts and professional studies accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges, Inc. It was founded in 1948, although it dates back to 1919 when Northeastern University established a branch in Providence offering courses in business and law. In 1956 it was chartered by the state under the name of Roger Williams Junior College, and in 1967 received permission to offer the baccalaureate degree as well as the associate degree. At this time its name was changed to Roger Williams College. In 1972 it earned accreditation from the New England Association of Schools and Colleges.

The college's Fulton Campus, overlooking Mt. Hope Bay in Bristol, opened in September, 1969. It offers courses in business, engineering technology, fine arts, humanities, natural and social sciences. Among its most recent programs are a five-year Bachelor of Architecture degree, three computer majors, a B.S. in construction science, and a minor in small craft design. The Providence Branch is maintained primarily for the Divison of Continuing Education.

Curriculum

The college awards the Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Architecture, Associate in Arts, and Associate in Science. Among its 32 majors are: administration of justice, business administration, management, accounting, marketing, architecture, civil electrical and mechanical engineering, career writing, American studies, art, biology, marine biology, chemistry, historic preservation, paralegal studies, political studies, psychology, and theatre. An interdivisional major leading to a B.A. may be arranged. Qualified part-time students who are not degree candidates may enroll in individual courses as class space permits.

The College also offers a program in Cooperative Education which permits students to alternate a semester of classroom work with a semester of paid employment. This is available to students in all majors.

The Open Division program is designed primarily for working adults. It offers a flexible, individualized B.A. or B.S. program, and includes credit granted for past and present employment, military and other learning experiences. Study is through independent work and related job projects, as well as some classroom courses.

Division of Continuing Education

Roger Williams College offers evening degree programs at its facilities in Providence and Bristol. Evening students may earn associate and/or baccalaureate degrees in accounting, administration of justice, business administration, management, marketing, engineering technology and social sciences.

A certificate program is offered in paralegal studies for those with a bachelor degree or experience in a law-related capacity. The college also offers associate and bachelor degrees in business administration to the personnel of the Naval Education and Training Center in Newport.

Summer Session

A summer session is available evenings in both Providence and Bristol. A course taken in this session is the equivalent to a full semester course. In addition, two intersessions in mid-winter and late spring permit intensive study in a single subject.

Enrollment

There are 2,400 day students and 1,400 evening students as of September, 1985.

Faculty

The college's day and evening faculty consists of aproximately 300 men and women holding degrees from colleges and universities in the U.S., Canada and Europe.

Entrance Requirements

Freshmen entering as degree candidates must be high school graduates or possess a high school equivalency diploma. Admissions decisions are recommendations of the high school counselor and admissions interview. The motivation of a prospective student is considered to be a primary factor in the admissions decision.

Transfer students are welcome at any point in their college career. Evaluation of transfer credits is conducted on an individual basis.

The college recognizes that people can and do acquire valid learning experiences at the college level outside the classroom. It assesses and may award academic credit for these experiences by means of the College Level Examination Program (CLEP) or through examinations arranged with the college.

Tuition and Financial Aid

Tuition at the Bristol campus is $5,845. Room and board is $3,490 annually. The college, through its financial aid office, assists students with college scholarships, grants, loans and work opportunities.

Buildings and Grounds

The Fulton campus opened in September, 1969, on a 63-acre site overlooking Mt. Hope Bay. The first seven buildings of the campus were a science-math building, classroom building, library, residence hall, dining lounge, administration building, and heating plant. A second residence hall opened in 1972, and a Student Center was completed in 1974.

In the spring of 1976, the Depariment of Health, Education and Welfare awarded to the College the former NIKE Missile site, 17 acres of land situated next to the campus. In 1983 a new Recreation Center opened and a waterfront residence complex for an additional 300 students was occupied in September. Under construction is a Performing Arts Center; a new architecture building has been designed for occupancy in 1987.

UNIVERSITY OF RHODE ISLAND

Kingston, RI 02881

Founded as a land-grant college in 1892 and designated a Sea Grant college in 1971, the coeducational institution is assisted by the State of Rhode Island. Originally named the Rhode Island College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, its name was changed to University of Rhode Island in 1951.

Curriculum

Entering freshmen are enrolled in University College until they meet the requirements of one of the seven degree-granting colleges of the university in which undergraduates may earn Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Fine Arts, Bachelor of Music, Bachelor of General Studies and Associate of Science degrees. The colleges give students degrees in the fields of arts, sciences, business administration, engineering, human science and services, nursing, pharmacy and resource development. Most undergraduate programs may be completed in four years with exception of pharmacy which is five years and fisheries and marine technology which is two years. Dental hygiene is offered in both a four-year bachelors program and a two-year associate degree program. Students may elect a course in military science, from which a limited number are selected for advanced training leading to commissions in the Army.

Graduate study is offered leading to master's or doctoral degrees in many areas. In addition to the central Graduate School there is a Graduate School of Library and Information Studies and a Graduate School of Oceanography.

In addition to strong research programs in various departments, the university has established specialized research through the Academic Computer Center, the Agricultural Experiment Station, the Center for Energy Studies, the Center for Ocean Management Studies, the Consortium for the Development of Technology, the Graduate School of Oceanography, the Center for Atmospheric Chemistry Studies, the Core Facility, the Institute of Human Science and Services, the Labor Research Center, the Research Center in Business and Economics, the Rhode Island Water Resources Center, the Robotics Research Center, the Sea Grant Program, the Program in Gerontology, and the Laboratories for Scientific Criminal Investigation.

Extension and Summer Session

The College of Continuing Education in Providence offers extension courses in most academic areas at its Promenade and Gaspee Streets building and at three other locations in the state. It also runs a Conference Center and an Environmental Education Center at the W. Alton Jones Campus in West Greenwich. Summer terms offer regular instruction and special workshops and conferences.

The Cooperative Extension Service maintains regional offices in Newport, Greenville, and East Greenwich. It offers programs in home economics, 4-H youth development, community resource development, and agriculture.

Marine-oriented extension services include the Coastal Resources Center, the International Center for Marine Resource Development, and the Marine Advisory Service.

Enrollment

In the fall of 1984 there were 11,000 undergraduate and graduate students at URI, plus 5,000 persons enrolled in the College of Continuing Education. Summer enrollment totaled 6,638.

Faculty

The faculty numbers about 730 members, exclusive of administrative officers.

Tuition and Fees

In 1985-86 students who are Rhode Island residents pay a total of $2,004 a year in fees; out-of-state students pay $5,576. Room and board averages $3,200 a year for resident students.

Finances

The following are approximate figures for the fiscal year 1984-85. Assets totaled $211,128,894. Current revenue for this period was $132,202,233 from the following sources: state appropriations—$51,411,880; federal grants, $26,232,800; auxiliary enterprises—$20,394,046; student fees—$26,001,200; other sources—$8,152,307.

Expenditures for the fiscal year totaled $130,371,069 which were: general administration and student services—$17,668,733; instruction and departmental research—$39,577,040; organized research—$20,157,298; operation and maintenance of plant-$10,594,472; auxiliary enterprises-$20,130,012; student aid—$7,753,683; all other—$14,489,831.

Buildings and Campuses

In addition to the main 1,200-acre campus at Kingston, the University has the 2,300-acre W. Alton Jones campus in West Greenwich, the 165-acre Narragansett Bay campus in Narragansett and the Continuing Education campus in Providence.

The 68 academic and service buildings on the Kingston campus include a few converted private homes, the Chafee Social Science Center, the Biological Sciences Building and the College of Nursing Building. There are 25 University-owned residence and dining halls and 24 fraternity and sorority houses.

Student Activities

Men's and women's student government organizations and numerous extracurricular groups as well as 8 sororities and 16 fraternities are active on campus. With an athletic plant built around Meade Stadium, the Keaney gymnasium and the Tootell Physicial Education Center, URI engages in intercollegiate competition for men in football, basketball, track, baseball, golf, tennis, soccer, swimming, and cross country. Women's intercollegiate teams participate in basketball, fencing, field hockey, gymnastics, lacrosse, softball, swimming and diving, tennis, cross country, track and volleyball. Both men and women compete in intramural programs.

SHIPPING IN RHODE ISLAND

Narragansett Bay was the principal highway of Colonial Rhode Island. Canoes were followed by sloops which made their appearance in the 1640s. In the latter part of the 18th century regular packet service was established. Regular service was available among all local ports as well as with most of the large northeastern harbors. Although steamers made serious inroads into the traffic, sailing vessels continued to carry a large portion of the heavy freight into Rhode Island until the turn of the 20th century. Since World War I, such vessels have almost disappeared from the Bay.

"The Experiment," the first steamboat in Rhode Island waters, made a short voyage on the Seekonk River in 1792. Another boat, "Firefly," which ran between Providence and Newport in 1817, discontinued service after four months of operation because it could not compete with the packets. In 1822 service between Newport and New York was established. From this time until the Second World War Providence was served by coastal steamers.

FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS IN RHODE ISLAND

Rhode Island's banking laws permit a wide range of state-chartered financial institutions to function as full service institutions. Mutual savings banks and savings and loan associations chartered in Rhode Island are permitted to own commercial banks. Rhode Island was the first state to allow credit unions to have checking accounts.

There are four national banks. During the year, the first interstate bank merger was completed making RIHT Corp., parent of Hospital Trust National Bank, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Bank of Boston Corp. Of the remainder, Fleet National Bank, the largest bank in the state, is owned by Fleet Financial Group, the Providence-based bankholding company; Newport National Bank, is owned by Old Colony, a federal savings bank which has an agreement to be bought by Bank of New England Corp; and Centreville National Bank, which is owned by a state-chartered mutual savings bank. Total assets of national banks were $7,027,533,504 as of Dec. 31, 1984, according to the Banking Division of the state Department of Business Regulation.

There are four state-chartered savings banks, each with its own commercial bank affiliate. The Banking Division reports total assets for savings banks at $2,176,787,000 at the end of 1984, but this includes the year-end assets of a fifth bank, Citizens Savings Bank, which has converted to a federal savings bank charter.

Citizens Savings Bank, which had 1984 year-end assets of $1,039,901,700. Old Stone Bank, which had 1984 year end assets of $2,098,756,138. People's Bank, which had year-end assets of $340,809,579, and Old Colony Co-operative Bank, which had year-end assets of $810,525,000, are federally-chartered mutual savings banks. These asset figures do not include their subsidiaries.

There are 14 state-chartered commercial banks or trust companies with Dec. 31, 1984 assets of $890,943,464, according to the Banking Division. At the start of 1985, five of them were independent, three were owned by state-chartered mutual savings banks, three were owned by federally-chartered savings bank, one was owned by a state savings and loan association, one was owned by a state-chartered loan and investment company, and one was in state receivership.

There are two state-chartered savings and loan associations remaining, which had a total of $52 million in assets at year-end 1984, according to the Banking Division. They are the Newport Savings and Loan Association, which is owned by The Island Trust Co., and Westerly Savings and Loan Association. Rhode Island Federal Savings & Loan Association, a federal savings and loan, was purchased in 1984 by Old Stone Corp., a thrift-holding company and the state's second largest financial institution.

There were 12 loan and investment companies with $ 1,047,207,904 in assets.

There were 68 state-chartered credit unions, including the Rhode Island Credit Union League Corporate Credit Union which serves as a central bank for members. Assets totaled $1,137,612,476 as of Dec. 1984. There are also 16 federally-chartered credit unions, with a total of $15,670,000 in assets, according to the Rhode Island Credit Union League, the trade union that represents credit unions in Rhode Island.

The Rhode Island Share and Deposit Indemnity Corp., a private organization, provides deposit insurance to member credit unions, banks and loan and investment companies. As of October 31, 1985, RISDIC listed 60 members and had total assets of $25,251,076.

HOSPITALS IN RHODE ISLAND

BUTLER HOSPITAL
345 Blackstone Blvd.
Providence, RI 02906

Butler Hospital is Rhode Island's only private adult/adolescent psychiatric hospital offering short term intensive treatment for patients 13 years of age or older and extended partial hospitalization care for outpatients.

The hospital's inpatient division consists of 108 general inpatient beds and a 12-bed intensive treatment unit for severely agitated or suicidal patients.

Outpatient services include an Acute Psychiatric Day Hospital for patients requiring intensive psychiatric care without 24-hour hospitalization; diagnostic screening and evaluation to determine if psychiatric care is necessary.

Alcohol services at the hospital include the Problem Drinkers Program (PDP) and the B.E.T.A. Project.

Therapies offered at Butler include individual and group psychotherapy, behavior therapy, marital therapy, activities therapy, family therapy, chemotherapy, psychological testing, psychiatric casework and family counseling.

The hospital, affiliated with Brown University Division of Biology and Medicine, provides educational programs for mental health professionals. Psychiatry clerkships for medical students are offered as well as residency training programs and a clinical psychology internship program. Butler also offers clinical training to psychiatric nurses, social workers and occupational therapists and pharmacologists.

It also has active evaluation and research departments and an intensive psychiatric library.

Founded in 1844, Butler Hospital is the oldest hospital in Rhode Island and one of the oldest psychiatric hospitals in the country.

EMMA PENDLETON BRADLEY HOSPITAL
1011 Veterans Memorial Pkwy.
East Providence, RI 02915

The Emma Pendleton Bradley Home was established in October 1925 and opened for operation on April 8, 1931 for the study and care of children's nervous and mental disorders. It was the first children's neuropsychiatric hospital in this country. The name was changed to Emma Pendleton Bradley Hospital on Oct. 24, 1957.

Bradley Hospital is a private, not-for-profit, psychiatric center for infants, children, adolescents and their families. The inpatient program consists of 56 beds serving children and adolescents ages 5 through 18 (up to the age of 22 for the developmentally disabled). The outpatient programs include two day hospitals serving children from infancy through age 17 and psychiatric outpatient services.

The hospital provides psychiatric and neurological evaluations, individual therapy, family therapy, parent counseling, group therapy, behavioral therapy, speech and language therapy, special education therapies and psychological and neuropsychological evaluations.

Bradley Hospital is affiliated with the Brown University Program in Medicine and provides education and training for psychiatrists, child psychiatrists, pediatricians, psychologists and medical students. It also serves as a clinical training resource for several other colleges and universities in southeastern New England with programs in social work, nursing, speech and language, special education and clinical child care.

FOGARTY MEMORIAL HOSPITAL
Eddie Dowling Highway
North Smithfield, RI 02895

Fogarty Memorial Hospital is a non-profit, voluntary hospital serving the northern Rhode Island and nearby Massachusetts community with excellence in care.

In addition to a wide range of medical and surgical services, Fogarty Memorial Hospital offers specialties in orthopedics and emergency medical care. The Fogarty emergency department is staffed around the clock with emergency physicians and critical care nurse professionals, and is a leader in the state in the training of pre-hospital emergency care personnel.

To better utilize scarce health care resources, thereby reducing the costs of health care for our community, Fogarty Memorial Hospital offers a one-day surgery program through our Ambulatory Surgery Unit. Lifeline, the personal emergency response system, helps the elderly and homebound of our community to maintain their independence at home, knowing help from Fogarty Memorial is only a pushbutton away.

Since it was established 30 years ago as a 30 bed facility in Woonsocket, the John E. Fogarty Memorial Hospital quickly expanded to its present 116 bed size, and now occupies a modern facility in North Smithfield. Emulating the characteristics of our late Congressman, in whose memory our hospital is named, our goal is to continue to meet the health care needs of our community now and into the future. At Fogarty Memorial Hospital, caring is what counts.

Board of Trustees: President—Judge George A. Beaudet; Vice President—Irving I. Zimmerman; Treasurer—Herbert L. Miller; Secretary—Adolph P. DiSandro Jr.; William R. KENT COUNTY MEMORIAL HOSPITAL
455 Toll Gate Rd.
Warwick, RI 02886

Kent County Memorial Hospital, a voluntary non-profit hospital, serves Kent County and surrounding areas. Kent was chartered by the state of Rhode Island in 1946 and opened as a 100-bed hospital in May, 1951. Building expansions in 1960, 1973 and 1981 have raised the bed total to 359. The second largest hospital in the state, Kent has emerged as a modern health care complex located on 57 acres in Warwick. The Kent County Mental Health Association and the Visiting Nurses Association are both located on Kent's campus.

Kent's medical staff, along with 1800 health care professionals, provide total clinical, diagnostic, therapeutic and support systems for each patient. Kent Hospital has the following specialized units: Medical-Surgical, Obstetrical-Gynecological, Pediatric and Psychiatric. Kent's Intensive Care Unit and its Extended Coronary Care Unit were each the first to open in Rhode Island. The hospital's Home Care Program, treating an average of well over 100 patients each day, was pioneered in 1964.

Kent's Emergency Services Department is open 365 days of the year, 24 hours each day. In 1985, an Express Treatment Unit was opened within the Emergency Services Department for the treatment of minor injuries and illness. As the second busiest Emergency room in Rhode Island with over 50,000 visits each year, the hospital opened the Express Unit to reduce the waiting time and to facilitate treatment of minor injuries.

Kent opened Rhode Island's first Outpatient Surgery Unit in 1975 and in 1983 expanded it with a maior addition to accommodate the growth in one-day surgical technology.

Kent County Memorial Hospital has a twenty-seven member voluntary Board of Trustees drawn from the community it serves.

THE MEMORIAL HOSPITAL
Prospect St.
Pawtucket, RI 02860

The Memorial Hospital was incorporated in 1901 as a general hospital. An extract from the deed of gift of the hospital estate contained the following provision: "Shall be forever occupied and used by The Memorial Hospital as a hospital where the rich and the poor who may be suffering from sickness, accident or injuries may receive medical and surgical care and treatment, paying therefore such amounts, if any, as they respectively may be able to pay, and the said corporation may from time to time require. But no person shall be refused care and treatment in said hospital because of inability to make compensation thereof, if the resources of said corporation for the time being are sufficient to enable it to receive, care for and treat persons without charge."

Memorial Hospital is a 294 bed teaching hospital affiliated with Brown University Program in Medicine. Memorial provides acute medical treatment in internal medicine, family medicine, obstetrics/gynecology, pediatrics, surgery, anesthesiology, radiology and pathology. In addition, they offer comprehensive rehabilitation services, one day surgery, ambulatory services, featuring day and evening hours and 24 hour-a-day emergency care. As a service to the Blackstone Valley community, special programs are provided in cardiac rehabilitation, diabetes outpatient education, coping with cancer, prepared childbirth and family planning. Memorial Hospital is the site of the Pawtucket Heart Health Program, promoting cardiovascular health, and the Parkinson's Disease Referral and Information Center, offering outpatient education and treatment of this disease.

THE MIRIAM HOSPITAL
164 Summit Ave.
Providence, RI 02906

The Miriam Hospital Association, organized by a group of women, obtained a charter in 1907, to establish a hospital in Providence. In 1923, community leaders joined in a campaign to raise funds to convert property on Parade Street into the first Miriam Hospital. The hospital was dedicated on Nov. 15, 1925.

At the end of World War II, a fund raising drive to provide funds for a new hospital was conducted. The drive was successful and the property of the former Jewish Orphanage on Summit Avenue was purchased. A supplemental fund campaign along with federal aid paved the way for construction of The Miriam Hospital on the Summit Avenue site. The new hospital with a 160 bed capacity was dedicated on Dec. 14, 1952.

Ten years later the hospital was operating at capacity and another expansion project was under way. The new Miriam Hospital was dedicated on April 24, 1966.

In 1969, The Miriam Hospital affiliated with the Brown University Program in Medicine and a research building was constructed on the hospital grounds. Since that time, a new Intensive Care Unit Building has been opened, as well as the fourth floor of the 1966 building.

Miriam Hospital is a non-sectarian, non-profit institution with 247 medical/surgical beds.

Chairman—Edwin A. Jaffe; Vice Chairman—Arthur Hurvitz; Treasurer—Alan M. Gilstein; Secretary—Banice M. Webber, M.D.

NEWPORT HOSPITAL
Friendship St.
Newport, RI 02840

Newport Hospital has been providing quality health care for the people of Aquidneck and Conanicut Islands on a continuing basis since 1873. The original two-story clapboard hospital, which contained twelve beds, was founded to provide medical services for mariners and the poor.

Today, Newport Hospital is a 217-bed private, not-for-profit, voluntary, general hospital dedicated to providing quality patient care and committed to promoting health education. The hospital is accredited by several voluntary accrediting agencies including the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals and is licensed by the Rhode Island Department of Health. The hospital's Vanderbilt Rehabilitation Center provides the only hospital based physical restoration program in Rhode Island which is accredited by the national Commission on Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities and which is exempt under the Medicare prospective payment system. The Newport Hospital School of Nursing, which opened in 1886, is the twentieth nursing school to be established in the United States. In addition, the hospital participates in cooperative programs with colleges and universities for the education of registered nurses, licensed practical nurses, x-ray technicians, physical therapists, medical technologists, pharmacists and other allied health personnel.

All patient rooms are located in modern buildings constructed between 1970 and 1980 with the exception of the twenty-eight rehabilitation beds in the recently renovated Vanderbilt Building. The Sheffield Building, completed in September, 1980, houses state of the art Intensive and Coronary Care Units as well as a new and completely equipped Emergency Department and Education Center. In the past decade the hospital has increased its capabilities to include: a Psychiatric Unit, Nuclear Medicine Department, ultrasound and echocardiography capabilities, Ambulatory Surgery Program, a Coronary Care Unit with computerized cardiac monitoring, a comprehensive physical rehabilitation program with an outpatient satellite facility, an Emergency Department staffed with full-time, experienced physicians, Family Practice Centers, a Cardio Pulmonary Division, CT scanning capabilities and state-of-the-art mammography.

Because of the distance between Newport Hospital and the inner city hospitals, the Board of Trustees is committed to making all the resources available which are necessary for comprehensive quality health care.

ROGER WILLIAMS GENERAL HOSPITAL
825 Chalkstone Ave.
Providence, RI 02908

Roger Williams General Hospital has been a vital part of the Rhode Island Community for more than 100 years and is recognized nationally for innovative programs in health care, education and research. A major affiliate of the Brown University program in medicine, the hospital combines the advantages of a sophisticated teaching and research hospital with the warmth and individualized care of a community hospital.

The hospital offers 238 acute care beds, a regional referral center for a variety of specialty health services, a modern metropolitan Emergency Department, and one of the largest free health education programs in the state.

The hospital is a National Cancer Institute—designated Clinical Cancer Research Center, and is one of 75 General Clinical Research Centers in the country designated by the National Institutes of Health.

The hospital also operates medical office satellites in Greenville and in the Olneyville section of Providence. As a Center for Geriatrics, the hospital also has relationships with several area nursing homes and the Southeastern New England Long Term Care Gerontology Program.

The hospital was established as a private, proprietary hospital in 1878 and incorporated as Homeopathic Hospital of Rhode Island in 1904. The hospital's name was changed to Roger Williams General Hospital on Feb. 20, 1947.

ST. JOSEPH HOSPITAL
200 High Service Ave.
North Providence, RI 02904

Founded in 1892, St. Joseph Hospital has been under the continuous sponsorship of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Providence. The Hospital serves metropolitan Providence and surrounding suburban communities with two physical plants, one in Providence (Our Lady of Providence Unit, 21 Peace St.) and one in North Providence (Our Lady of Fatima Unit, 200 High Service Ave.). Corporate offices for the two units are located on the grounds of the North Providence facility. St. Joseph Hospital offers treatment in 28 medical/surgical specialties, with a principal specilization in neurosurgery. The Hospital's 37-bed neurosurgery program is a key referral center serving southeastern New England. Certain services are centralized at individual units to avoid duplication. For example: Emergency Medical Services, Obstetrics and Pediatrics facilities are all located at the Providence Unit. Corporate offices, the diploma school of nursing and the hospital's computer center are at the North Providence unit.

St. Joseph Hospital, with a licensed capacity of 494 beds and 16 bassinets, employs 2,000 persons and has a staff of 450 physicians and dentists.

Participants in the hospital's educational programs include students from Providence College, Salve Regina College, Rhode Island College, Community College of Rhode Island, and the University of Rhode Island.

In addition, Anna Maria College, Becker Junior College, North Adams State College, Quinnipiac College, and Stonehill College are affiliated with the hospital.

St. Joseph offers a variety of continuing professional and continuing medical education programs, operates schools of nursing, medical technology, cyto-technology and histo-technology.

The Most Rev. Louis E. Gelineau, Bishop of Providence, is chairman of the hospital's board of trustees. A. Edward Azevedo is President.

SOUTH COUNTY HOSPITAL
95 Kenyon Ave.
Wakefield, RI 02879

The South County Hospital was organized in 1919 and incorporated on April 1, 1920 as the South County Cottage Hospital for the purpose "of operating and maintaining a hospital for the sick, disabled and injured of Washington County." After four years in a temporary cottage, the present original building was erected with a capacity of 46 beds and 11 bassinets. The T. G. Hazard Jr. Memorial wing was opened on Aug. 16, 1952, adding additional beds and bassinets, as well as an enlarged x-ray, laboratory and other ancillary facilities. On Oct. 28, 1962, another addition was completed at the hospital providing expanded facilities for operating room, clinical laboratories, central supply, recovery room and a complete new heating plant. The bed capacity was increased to 72 beds and 6 bassinets.

The Borda Wing, a 30-bed post-acute-care unit, opened in June, 1970. The experimental design of this unit was developed by social psychologists to lessen the length of confinement.

The expansion program of outpatient facilities which began in 1978 was completed in 1980. The addition consisted of an enlarged emergency room, new outpatient services for clinical laboratories, x-ray department, respiratory therapy and nuclear medicine and ultra sound.

A $5 million south wing addition to the hospital was completed and opened for occupancy Sep. 13, 1981. This building, known as the Read Wing, replaced 57 beds in the original building of the hospital. The original building was renamed the Sturges Building. The addition includes an expanded coronary intensive care unit, new maternity department, outpatient surgical facilities, new pharmacy and an expanded central sterile supply.

South County Hospital provides services to both inpatients and outpatients for general, medical, surgical, obstetrical and pediatrics. In addition, there is a 24-hour emergency department, nuclear medicine, ultrasound services, and CT Scanning.

BLUE CROSS & BLUE SHIELD OF RHODE ISLAND
444 Westminster Mall
Providence, RI 02901

Blue Cross & Blue Shield of Rhode Island is a voluntary, non-profit corporation, established for the pre-payment of hospital and medical-surgical expenses.

Membership in the plan as of August 1, 1985 was approximately 800,000 persons who reside or work in Rhode Island. Enrollment is normally obtained through groups at a person's place of employment, although the Blue Cross & Blue Shield Plan opens its Direct Pay enrollment for persons not eligible for group coverage. No one is ever denied membership because of poor health.

Benefits are guaranteed by the following member hospitals: Bradley, Butler, Cranston General, Fogarty Memorial, Fuller Memorial, Institute of Mental Health, Kent County, Memorial, Miriam, Newport, Notre Dame, Rhode Island, Roger Williams, St. Joseph, South County, Westerly, Women and Infants, Woonsocket, and Zambarano. Service benefit hospitals are: St. Anne's and Charlton Memorial, Fall River, Mass., and Sturdy Memorial Hospital, Attleboro, Mass.

In addition, particpating physicians—representing more than 93 percent of the physicians in the state—have agreed to accept Blue Cross & Blue Shield Plan 100 allowances as payment in full for eligible services.

Hospital benefits vary slightly, but 99 percent of all subscribers have full coverage for room and board, nursing and intensive care services; up to 120 days of hospitalization for each admission; full coverage in member and service benefit hospitals for use of operating rooms, all necessary laboratory tests, all medical and surgical supplies, physician therapy, oxygen therapy, all drugs and medications listed in the Pharmacopeia of the United States, all pathological examinations, and intravenous solutions equipment.

Medical-surgical benefits cover payments for surgery, reduction of fractures or dislocations, services of the assisting surgeon and physician anesthetist. Also provided are benefits for maternity cases, visits to non-surgical patients in the hospital and x-rays.

In addition, Blue Cross & Blue Shield of Rhode Island, in cooperation with the Bristol County and Aquidneck Medical Centers, and throughout the Blackstone Valley, in sponsorship with the Pawtucket Medical Association, provide Alternate Delivery Service (ADS) to residents of these areas. For a set fee, paid in advance, MEDIGROUP subscribers receive virtually all of their health care services from physicians at the Bristol or Aquidneck Medical Centers, from participating physicians in the Blackstone Valley, or under the direction of their primary physicians.

Blue Cross & Blue Shield of Rhode Island is also developing a statewide Health Maintenance Organization (HMO), through its wholly owned subsidiary, HMO Rhode Island will initially develp a pre-paid program involving doctors in their individual practices. A primary care physician, selected by the subscriber will work with the subscriber in the management of their total health care needs, with emphasis on preventive care. Eventually HMO Rhode Island will expand its program to include other delivery systems, depending on the community needs around the state.

Blue Cross & Blue Shield of Rhode Island was awarded a contract by the federal government beginning in July, 1977 to administer and process health care benefits for the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (CHAMPUS). This program covers servicemen's families and retired military personnel. In March, 1983, Blue Cross & Blue Shield of Rhode Island was awarded an expanded 17-state CHAMPUS contract which now covers more than one million subscribers. Blue Cross & Blue Shield of Rhode Island again won this contract in April of 1985.

Blue Cross & Blue Shield of Rhode Island was also the winner of a Federal contract to process claims for the Uniformed Services Treatment Facility program. These involve former public health service hospitals which now treat both military personnel and civilians. This contract was awarded through competitive bidding in February, 1985.

Blue Cross & Blue Shield of Rhode Island also administers hospitalization and out-of-state coverage for the Rhode Island Group Health Association (RIGHA).

In addition, Blue Cross & Blue Shield of Rhode Island administers the Medicare program for Rhode Islanders over age 65.

During 1984, Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Rhode Island paid hospital and medical surgical bills of $342,273,481 on more than 5.1 million local claims.

In addition, Blue Cross & Blue Shield of Rhode Island processed more than 1.8 million Federal Medicare hospital and surgical-medical claims totalling in excess of $218 million dollars.

Also in 1984, Blue Cross & Blue Shield of Rhode Island was awarded the Blue Cross Association Cost Containment Award. This award recognized the Rhode Island Plan as being the leader in cost containment among all 90 Blue Cross and Blue Shield Plans in the country. This marked the second year in a row that the Rhode Island Plan won this award.

Prior to a merger that was effective Oct. 1, 1982, Blue Cross of Rhode Island and Blue Shield of Rhode Island were seperate corporations. Blue Cross of Rhode Island was established in 1939. Blue Shield of Rhode Island was established in 1949 under the corporate title of Rhode Island Medical Society Physicians Service.

DELTA DENTAL OF RHODE ISLAND

444 Westminster Mall
Providence, RI 02901

Delta Dental of Rhode Island is a non-profit dental insurance program, developed under special charter and administered by Blue Cross & Blue Shield of Rhode Island under the terms of a joint operations agreement signed June 19, 1973. Delta Dental provides coverage for dental services on a paid-in-full and coinsurance basis, subject to annual maximum payments and pre-authorization requirements for certain procedures.

Over 90 percent of the state's practicing dentists have signed participating agreements with Delta Dental. As of August 1, 1985, there were 227,367 Rhode Islanders who were enrolled in the plan. Covered services include basic benefits—oral examination, routine x-rays, fluoride, prophylaxis, fillings, limited root canal, denture repairs, simple extractions, biopsies and emergency care; periodontics—oral surgery, periodontics, endodontics, inlays, crowns/caps and space maintainers; prosthodontics—bridgework, partial plates, full dentures; and orthodontics—braces.

RHODE ISLAND GROUP HEALTH ASSOCIATION, INC.
2 Davol Square
Providence, RI 02903

Rhode Island Group Health Association (RIGHA) is a non-profit Health Maintenance Organization (HMO). RIGHA began providing services in 1971 and in 1975 became the first federally qualified HMO in the United States.

Currently 62,000 people residing in Rhode Island and Southeastern Massachusetts have chosen RIGHA for health coverage. While most members are enrolled through a group or employer, direct-pay membership and membership in the Medicare Supplement program is also available.

RIGHA provides 100 percent coverage for doctor office visits, X-ray and lab tests, injections, physical evaluations, pediatric care, OB-GYN examinations, and hearing and vision examinations. In-hospital benefits include 100 percent coverage for semi-private room (or private room if medically necessary), surgery and related expenses, X-ray and lab work and specialist visits.

RIGHA provides health services at six centers: 530 North Main St., Providence; Warwick Mall, Warwick; Lincoln, on Old River Road and Commerce St., (off Route 116); Aquidneck Island, Aquidneck Medical Center, Memorial Blvd., Newport; Plainville, Mass. at the junction of Routes 106 and 152; and Swansea, Mass., at the Professional Park, 1010 GAR Highway.

STATE MEDICAL CENTER

The R.I. Department of Mental Health, Retardation and Hospitals' administrative offices are located at the Medical Center in Cranston. The department was established within the executive branch of the state government in 1970 (General Laws, Chapter 42-12). Two of the four major institutions operated by MHRH are located at the Medical Center in Cranston. They are the Institute of Mental Health and the General Hospital. MHRH also operates the Ladd Center in Exeter and the Zambarano Memorial Hospital in Burrillville.

The Institute of Mental Health is a 403-bed psychiatric hospital providing long term psychiatric care, acute care services and competency evaluations for District and Superior Courts. The service programs of the hospital include admission services, rehabilitative services I, rehabilitative services II, special treatment services, and forensic services.

The General Hospital is an 540-bed facility specializing in long-term-care with supportive acute, psycho-geriatric, oncological, respiratory and rehabilitative services. Multi-disciplinary rehabilitative programming emphasizes individual functional ability.

Also located at the Medical Center and operated by the Department of Mental Health, Retardation and Hospitals is the Benjamin Rush Detoxification Unit, a 48-bed facility providing 24-hour comprehensive drug and alcohol detoxification services.

HURRICANES IN RHODE ISLAND

Sept. 21, 1938

(All Times Are Eastern Standard)

A hurricane and tidal wave swept over the state, taking a death toll of 262 persons, causing damage estimated at $100,000,000 and completely prostrating the commonwealth in the worst disaster in its history.

The South Shore, from Watch Hill to Narragansett, bore the brunt of the devastation. Westerly, with 59 deaths, and Charlestown, with 50, suffered 109 of the state's 262 deaths. Two tidal waves of almost 30 feet high destroyed or damaged most of the beach homes in this area. Beginning at 3:30 p.m. the devastation in this area was completed in 20 minutes, sweeping scores of persons, and in some cases whole families, to their deaths.

In downtown Providence the tidal wave flooded the area to a depth of more than 13.9 feet above mean high water mark. Persons were drowned trying to escape, automobiles were submerged in the streets, department stores, banks, hotels, restaurants and shops were flooded to the first floor ceilings.

At 4:16 p.m., all power and telephone lines died. The only means of communication by state and municipal authorities was radio short wave. Martial law was established in many sections and curfew rules put in effect. With its press room flooded and deprived of power, the Providence Journal and Evening Bulletin were unable to print on their own presses. Emergency editions were printed without interruption, the Providence Journal on the presses of the Woonsocket Call and the Evening Bulletin on the presses of the Boston Post. The Journal and Bulletin resumed publication on its own presses October 3.

Official observations at the United States Weather Bureau in Providence show the peak of the high tide occurred at 6 p.m., and the lowest barometer reading was 28.90. The highest wind velocity, 95 miles an hour at 4:07 p.m., wrecked the wind measuring equipment. The highest velocity for a five-minute period was 87 miles per hour at 4:05 p.m. The Block Island Weather Bureau's highest wind velocity was 82 m.p.h., southeast, and the lowest barometer was 28.66.

The United States Engineers' Office in Providence made a survey to determine the elevation of the flood tide at certain locations: Rhode Island Hospital Trust Building, outside the door on Exchange Place, 13.21 feet above mean high water. At the easterly corner of the Rhode Island Hospital Trust Building the elevation was 11.72 feet above mean high water level as compared with 11.68 feet in the Great Gale of 1815.

At the Chamber of Commerce Building (Old Market House), the high water mark was 11.73 feet above mean high water. At the Post Office Building the water rose to 13.26 feet above mean high water. According to figures obtained by the Providence City Engineers' Office, the water reached a mark of 13.04 feet above mean high water at the Biltmore Hotel on Washington Street.

The Red Cross spent $433,485 in Rhode Island for the rehabilitation of 3,074 families. A total of 19,695 families suffered property loss, 797 permanent homes were destroyed, 1,169 summer homes were washed away, 899 boats destroyed and 888 damaged, 177 barns and 1,800 other buildings of various types destroyed, 144 cattle, 41 work animals and 18,475 chickens and turkeys killed.

The seashore hotel loss was fixed at $1,000,000; farm loss, $6,000,000; fishing industry, $960,000; Newport Naval Station, $650,000; Newport County crops and buildings, $300,000.

Sept. 14, 1944

The second hurricane in six years hit the South Shore at 6 p.m., causing property damage estimated at $2,000,000 in Rhode Island. There was no loss of life.

The coastal area bore the brunt of the hurricane, inflicting heavy damage from Westerly to Little Compton, including Newport. The northern and central part of the state escaped the fury of the storm. Telephone and telegraph, electric light and power service was completely disrupted. Transportation was paralyzed and railroad service west of Providence suspended.

Many homes along the South County shore from Watch Hill to Wickford were blown from their foundations. Misquamicut and Quonochontaug being particularly hard hit. Warwick shore property was also damaged. Damage estimated at $500,000 was caused in Newport, Bailey's Beach, Hazard's Beach. At Sakonnet Point, Little Compton, widespread damage resulted from wind and tides, several houses being destroyed. Along the east shore many homes were flooded and Bristol County was without water, due to the flooding of the reservoir.

There was no tidal wave because the storm hit the state at ebb tide. The water was about eight feet below that of the 1938 hurricane.

In Providence the water rose to within six inches of the Crawford Street Bridge. In the city's center, water flowed over the curbs as a result of the heavy rainfall of 5.43 inches and the high tides which blocked the normal drainage flow. On Exchange Place Mall, the water was knee deep. Because the water approached the flood danger point, the Narragansett Electric Co. shut off all power from 11:07 p.m. to 1:02 a.m., September 15, to avoid the danger of fire from short circuits.

The Block Island Weather Bureau's low barometer of 28.34 was .32 below that of the 1938 hurricane. The wind velocity of 82 m.p.h equalled that of 1938, with gusts up to 100 m.p.h. from the southeast. Rainfall measured 1.55 inches.

The Providence Weather Bureau barometer dipped to 28.56, or .34 below the 1938 record. During a 16-hour period, the drop was 1.40 inches. The highest sustained wind velocity was 43 m.p.h., with gusts up to 90 m.p.h. The State Airport barometer registered 28.48, lower than Providence, because it was nearer the center of the storm.

Aug. 31, 1954

Preceded by only a few minutes warning, Hurricane Carol swept across the state leaving 19 dead and scores of injured. Property damage was estimated at $90,000,000.

As in 1938, the hurricane, which reached its peak intensity at 11:37 a.m., hit at high tide and was accompanied by tidal waves.

Damage all along the Rhode Island shoreline was almost unbelievable. Many summer colonies, like those at Misquamicut and Weekapaug, were almost completely obliterated; 2,000 fishing boats and pleasure craft were sunk or damaged.

Throughout the state trees were felled, buildings were damaged and washouts were common. Almost 3,800 homes were destroyed and thousands more bore scars. Electric power failed at 9:10 a.m. and was unavailable in most sections for days, 95 percent of telephones were dead.

The downtown area of Providence was flooded when the water reached 13 feet above mean high water level, just .9 of a foot below the 1938 record. Millions of dollars in merchandise was lost. Almost 3,500 automobiles, valued at $5,000,000 were inundated. The city was crippled for a week during the pumping out process, and while utilities were being restored.

The Providence Journal presses were flooded, but editions of the Journal and Evening Bulletin were printed on the presses of the Woonsocket Call and Pawtucket Times. The Journal resumed publication with limited facilities on its own presses on September 3.

Hillsgrove weather station reported sustained winds at 90 m.p.h. just before 12 noon and gusts of 110-115 m.p.h. Lowest barometer readings between 11:30 and 12:30 were 28.69 inches as the eye of the storm passed near the state airport.

Throughout the state farm damage was high, running in total to an estimated $2,000,000. Buildings accounted for much of this figure, but orchards and nurseries were also hard hit.

The state's commercial fishing fleet and its facilities were all but put out of business. Boats were sunk or damaged, docks were torn apart and shore plants were flooded. Losses ran close to $1,000,000.

Damage to yacht clubs, marinas and pleasure craft was in the millions with the stretch of shoreline from Fields Point to Pawtuxet Neck the hardest hit. Of 150 craft moored in this area, 75 were sunk, 26 were damaged and only a few were left at their moorings. The Rhode Island Yacht Club and its dock facilities were completely destroyed. Damage was over $1,000,000. The Atlantic 1 na Derby Fleet gathered at Galilee had 24 boats sunk and three badly damaged. The remainder all sustained some minor damage.

Sept. 11, 1954

The state's second hurricane in just 12 days, Hurricane Edna, spared Rhode Island the devastation of its worst winds and seas but power and communications were cut; hitting the state several hours after full moon tide with torrential rains and winds from 40 to 50 miles an hour, with blasts of more than 90 m.p.h at Block Island. Blackstone River overflowed its banks, swamping homes, industrial plants and streets along Blackstone Valley; damage estimated in the hundreds of thousands.

Aug. 19, 1955

Hurricane Diane, her winds abated by an inland trip, brought 6.13 inches of rain to Rhode Island, causing the worst flood in the state's history. Most serious damage was in the Blackstone Valley with the Social District of Woonsocket hardest hit. Homes and factories along the river were severely damaged.

Ample warning and quick action by the authorities resulted in only two lives being lost. People were evacuated from the low-lying areas as local, state and civilian agencies went into action before the swollen rivers began their destruction.

Rail travel between Providence and Boston was suspended. Power and phone failures were common. Loss was estimated at $170,000,000.

Woonsocket was cut in half as all of the dams on the Blackstone and Mill Rivers were breached. Tide crest reached 15 feet above normal with eight feet covering the Social District. Stores, homes and offices were left under tons of mud. Damage was estimated at $25,000,000.

Sept. 12, 1960

Hurricane Donna, with sustained winds of up to 58 miles per hour, and gusts up to 81 miles per hour, swept across Rhode Island on this date. No deaths were recorded and there was no tidal wave.

The barometer at Hillsgrove dropped to 28.66. Rainfall totaled 2.22 inches from 2 a.m. to 6 p.m. The tidal surge in the Providence River ranged between 6 and 6.5 feet above normal high tide. Property damage was estimated at $2,140,000.

Ample warning permitted schools, stores, manufacturing establishments and government offices to close before the storm hit. It also permitted extensive precautions. This accounts to some extent for the lack of deaths and relatively low property damage.

Phone service and travel were interrupted, but Narragansett Electric Co. was hardest hit. Of 163 feeder lines, 153 were knocked out by Donna, leaving 170,000, or 82 percent, of its customers without service. With some exceptions service was restored by the 17th.

Sept. 27, 1985

Hurricane Gloria, billed as one of the most powerful hurricanes of the century, sideswiped Rhode Island on September 27, 1985, blacking out much of the state and causing widespread damage.

Packing winds gusting up to 81 miles per hour (with a 91-mph gust reported in Westerly), Gloria's eye passed to the west of the state, traveling at a speed of about 40 mph.

One person died during the storm, killed by a tree that fell when he tried to remove a branch from a telephone wire leading to his home. Another man was apparently killed after being hit in the face by the boom of his 30-foot sailboat in Bristol Harbor, but that death came after the storm moved out of the region through western Massachusetts.

About 350,000 customers lost electrical service and 7,300 persons were forced to evacuate. About 2,000 telephone customers lost service.

By mid-morning, Gov. Edward DiPrete had banned all travel, closed the state's major bridges, ordered schools and banks closed, sent non-essential state workers home and asked private businesses to shut down.

It took up to nine days for five power companies, using repair crews from as far away as Quebec and North Carolina, to restore power. By 6 p.m. Tuesday, four days after the Friday afternoon storm, 27,000 Rhode Island homes or businesses were still without electricity.

Part of the restoration efforts were aggravated by the fact that the storm brought virutually no rain to the state. There was, however, a salt spray that coated transmission lines with salt. When it rained a few days later, the salt caused some power lines to short circuit.
